The Pilot's Skill. The pilot's skill is by no means equally proved in a calm as in a storm. The former case he tamely enters the port unnoticed and unapprehended; but when the courage creaks, the most bonds and the rudder groans, then it is that he shines out in all his glory—Pliny the Younger.

ASK PRESIDENT TO HELP WAR RELIEF

Delegation Representing Various Relief Societies Presents Memorial to President.

Yesterday afternoon a delegation representing a large number of war relief organizations in the United States, headed by President Wilson, at St. Louis, Mo., and presented a memorial to him in regard to the relief of war sufferers. The memorial states the belief of all these wide-spread societies that every possible persuasion should be brought to bear and every opportunity presented whereby the American people shall respond to the crying need of these afflicted peoples.

The memorial declares that the gifts of the American people, while generous and constant, are still inadequate to meet the demands of the many people in distress; our donations are said to be by no means proportional to our resources and are not an adequate expression of national unselfishness.

"We therefore suggest," concludes the memorial, "in your annual Thanksgiving proclamation, as you remind the people to give thanks for our prosperity and peace, you invite them, at their respective assemblies on or near Thanksgiving Day, or in their home circles, to remember with sympathy and love the peoples of the other nations so grievously afflicted, and suggest that they make this another occasion to tender their gifts as an appropriate expression of their thanks to Almighty God, the Father of all, for another year of national well-being.

The memorial was presented by Rev. Charles S. Macfarland, general secretary of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America, and the delegates included Brock Trowbridge, chairman of the Serbian relief committee of America; W. Giddings, secretary of the commission for relief in Belgium; Samuel T. Dutton, secretary of the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief; and Robert H. Kroes, representing the B. F. B. permanent blind relief fund; Hugo Lieber, representing the East Prussian relief fund; Frederick Lynch, director of the starling children's fund; I. J. Paderewski, founder of the Polish victims' relief fund; Frederick H. Allen, member of the executive committee of the national allied relief committee.

Recommendations Special Services. The federal council of the Churches of Christ in America recommends that at the Thanksgiving services, both on the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving and on the day of the customary union services on that day, consideration be given to the sufferers in Europe and Asia, whose condition presents such a sad contrast to our own comfort and prosperity.

THE PEOPLE RULE.

While the final result is undetermined as to whom the electors of the United States have chosen as their president for the next four years, the election of Tuesday has demonstrated one thing most decisively, and that is that the eastern states no longer control the destinies of the nation as far as an election goes, and the west has risen in its might and shown its strength in a most decisive manner.

The days of past decades when the election was decided by New York, or some one of the middle west states appears to have passed and it is to the great northwest and the Pacific coast that politicians of the future campaign must turn their attention to secure the selection of their candidate.

The south, as solid as ever, has given its vote to the democratic party. New York, New Jersey and the New England states, with Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa have shown allegiance to the republican doctrine, but upon such states as Oregon, North Dakota, Wyoming, Oregon, California, Virginia, and Delaware depends the selection. Kansas and New Mexico also play their part in this ultimate verdict much to the surprise of politicians.

First returns Tuesday night apparently gave Hughes an overwhelming majority, but as later returns drifted in from the middle west, the north and the Pacific coast, the majority dwindled. Men who went to bed confident that Hughes had won, awoke this morning to find that overnight their hopes had been shattered and Wilson appeared to be the favorite.

That huge spring eternal is shown by the claims today of the managers of both the candidates, each claiming the election of their favorite by good, safe margins. However, time will tell the tale, and the result may not be known for several days yet, and again it may be decided within a few hours. Meanwhile the people rule.

ELECTION RETURNS.

People who sit up election night to ask why returns are so slow coming in. They complain about the slowness of news that comes from the states. These returns give no comparison with previous years. This gives absolutely no idea which side is gaining or losing.

Of course the counting, dispatching, and tabulating of 15,000,000 ballots, cast in several hundred thousand polling places, is "some job." But there must be a million men working on it election night. The news ought to come in systematically and promptly. Formerly many thousands of polling precincts had neither railroad nor telegraph connection. In many cases arrangements had to be made for carrying the return on horseback or by team.

Now there are comparatively few precincts that are not connected by telephone. If there is delay, it may be because the counters are lazy. More commonly it is because someone has carried the return home in his pocket and has forgotten to telephone it. It will take a vigorous punch by telegraph to awaken him to that fact next day or later. Returns are often held up for some legal technicality or political slight of hand. Election officers ought to know the law well enough to avoid such pitfalls. A whole nation eagerly awaits results of a presidential election. In many cases vital personal interests are affected. The public should not be kept waiting. Every election officer and every newspaper representative should help get the news on the wires at the earliest possible moment. In some towns that are habitually late could hear the newspaper people and election watchers growl about their ways, they would realize that they are not getting a valuable kind of advertising.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSES.

It is a motley crowd of motorists whom you find out on the automobile highways today. Many of them come hundreds or even thousands of miles. The man who wrecks your car and runs away may come from a state where no safeguards whatever are thrown about the running of high powered machines.

Practice in this matter varies greatly in different states. In some the novice motorist must pass a real examination before he is turned loose for wear or woe. The examiners require him to shift his machine around in narrow spaces and steer on narrow roads until he has shown that he is a real driver. But in other states practically no restrictions are thrown about motor running. Novices are allowed on the public ways in command of a powerful locomotive capable of smashing a strong fence to atoms. There is no safeguard but their own caution and judgment. Their caution may be all right, but their experience is limited. They do not realize how fast they are going or how quickly the materials for a grand smash arrange themselves. Arriving at some tight spot, their presence of mind gives way, and they push the accelerator instead of putting their foot on the brake. It is fortunate if they, and not the innocent victims, are the ones to go to the hospital.

There are some states that are pretty loose in the matter of licensing automobiles, yet which are quite strict with any person who has had an accident. They argue that the worst accidents are not caused by novices, but by experienced drivers who have grown reckless.

Still the roads would be a lot safer if green drivers were compelled by all the states to take a longer course of tutelage. It does not take long to learn to drive an automobile with a fair degree of skill. A month's practice, several times a week, should make most people competent. It would not hurt them to demonstrate this competence before being turned loose at their powerful throttle.

13 MONTHS TO CONGRESS.

The newly elected congress, re-elected Tuesday, unless called in extra session, does not meet until December, 1917. Almost every one will admit that this arrangement is anomalous, and contrary to all principles of successful business.

In private life, if you employ a new man, you put him on the job at once. Holdovers can not be expected to put much energy into their work. If you are taking on a new set of men or new ideas, you want to try them out as soon as possible. If the men and ideas are good, you want the benefit in the least possible time; if they are futile, you want to know it as soon as possible.

A short session of congress immediately following election traditionally never does much but pass appropriation bills. Even where the same party is retained in power, there are a lot of members who are not to come back. They feel little enthusiasm for work. The session is perfunctory. Yet there is a host of big problems immediately demanding attention. Many meritorious propositions fail because congress can not get around to them.

The present arrangement does not perhaps incur any great loss. Yet it is one of a number of unbusinesslike ways that tend to make the government less efficient than private business. But you could never make a political issue out of a proposition to have the new congress meet within a month after it was elected, as it ought to. There are no votes in such a proposal.

It all shows that issues have to appeal to the popular imagination in order to force themselves on the politicians. The latter are looking for a program that will make votes. But there is a growing number of people who appreciate direct, businesslike methods. The man and the party that can remedy some minor defects like this will make itself popular with a lot of people who appreciate good, systematic work.

Our fathers fought, bled, and died to secure the privilege of electing our own rulers, while we are profoundly thankful that we don't have to do any more electing of those rulers for four more years.

Commenting on the women of New York, one writer says that Manhattan is the city of the powder puff. Perhaps the City of the Paint Brush would be a more accurate description.

Looking at it from a purely selfish viewpoint, while the war makes prices much higher, it is killing off great numbers of obstreperous and trouble-making people.

There is a growing feeling among merchants that people who return goods and expect full price, should bring them back before they are all worn out.

A great many people are now driving high-powered automobiles on the highways, but the men who formerly weren't considered competent to handle a baby carriage.

The newly elected congressmen assure the public that they will attend faithfully to the duty of paying their political debts with public offices.

After denouncing the robber trusts, the farmers proceed to make a combine to raise the prices of milk.

The True Story of Little Audley.

(Complete in this issue.) There was a child whose rearing had been so faultless and in whom had been instilled by a fond mother and three aunts so many of the most wholesome moral precepts that at the age of nine he was dearly loved by every small boy on the block. Oh, but he was.

Feeling a most delicate consideration for the affection they had for him he strove to retain it. Rather than pain them with a sense of their own inferior and unchastened natures he would endeavor to avoid a meeting. If he saw them coming he would go home up a alley.

Sixty Years the Standard

Made from Cream of Tartar

His father noting this disposition in little Audley had been observed on one occasion to go out on the porch and with his right foot walt the cat far over among the neighbors' dachshunds.

Once it is true Audley had words and a little scene with the boys. It was in this way: "Passing a group as they jostled and hooked in their rough play he heard one of them use coarse language.

"Drat you!" the boy had said, turning to threaten a smaller companion. Audley paused to regard them and silently frowned a rebuke. My little readers will be astonished to hear how ungrateful and ill-mannered were the boys. Audley had spoken but a few well-chosen words of reproach when several of the largest burst forth into coarse laughter. Another, a bit bolder than the rest, stepped forward and reached out as though to slap Audley's hand, skipping away with a little scream.

Several of them called him "Ethel" and "Louise." Another asked him for a little kiss. His cheeks burning with indignation Audley hurried away determined never again to detain them in their evil courses. When he related it all at home with many sobs his mother and aunts gathered about smothering him with sympathy and kisses. His father bit off the end of his cigar.

One day, however, while Audley was skipping rope with a neighbor's daughter several of the boys came up and took him with them to the shanty club rooms. Audley didn't want to go and he was real weak when he got there. He was glad he had scratched the nose of the ring-leader, a loutish fellow of eleven.

That night his mother gave him a hot bath and fixed his black eye. Then she put the clothes he had worn in the rag bag.

While she was thus engaged the bell rang and Audley's father went to the door. There was a boy there and Audley's father gave the boy fifty cents.

The boy had a scratch on his nose.

Brodhead News

Brodhead, Nov. 8.—A heavy vote was polled in Brodhead on Tuesday with the republicans in the lead. C. Engelhardt was elected county sheriff and C. A. Roderick, democrat, for county clerk.

Now there are comparatively few precincts that are not connected by telephone. If there is delay, it may be because the counters are lazy.

Of course the counting, dispatching, and tabulating of 15,000,000 ballots, cast in several hundred thousand polling places, is "some job." But there must be a million men working on it election night.

The news ought to come in systematically and promptly. Formerly many thousands of polling precincts had neither railroad nor telegraph connection. In many cases arrangements had to be made for carrying the return on horseback or by team.

Now there are comparatively few precincts that are not connected by telephone. If there is delay, it may be because the counters are lazy. More commonly it is because someone has carried the return home in his pocket and has forgotten to telephone it.

It will take a vigorous punch by telegraph to awaken him to that fact next day or later. Returns are often held up for some legal technicality or political slight of hand. Election officers ought to know the law well enough to avoid such pitfalls.

A whole nation eagerly awaits results of a presidential election. In many cases vital personal interests are affected. The public should not be kept waiting. Every election officer and every newspaper representative should help get the news on the wires at the earliest possible moment.

pect to spent some weeks hunting. R. J. Holcomb departed Tuesday for Newton, Iowa, on a visit to friends. J. B. Pierce is a Milwaukee visitor. Mrs. Fannie Metcalf of Janesville, was the guest of her sisters and returned home Tuesday. W. G. Smith departed Tuesday for a business trip to Mott, South Dakota. E. T. Rossiter is reported as slightly better.

CIRCUIT COURT WILL TRY JIM THE GUNMAN; SEEKS SPEEDY TRIAL

JUDGE MAXFIELD THIS MORNING BINDS ITALIAN BOY MURDERER OVER AND HOLDS HIM WITHOUT BAIL.

CASE SET FOR MARCH

Court Places Trial Date For Next Term Before Judge George Grimm Which Comes in 1917.

Vincent Cornevale, the twenty-two year old Italian, who today afternoon confessed to Detective Dan G. Torrist that he fired the shots which killed Raffles Palmero on the night of October 26, this morning before Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court, was bound over to the circuit court for trial in the Rock county circuit court.

Judge Maxfield stipulated the first day of the next term of the court as that on which Cornevale was to be tried. Since the October term has been postponed until December fourth, the next term will be in March, 1917. It is not thought the case can be placed on the present calendar for a trial in December.

Wanted Quick Trial. The prisoner told the court he was ready for immediate trial and would plead guilty at once. Since the jurisdiction of a sentence for murder lies without that of a municipal court, Judge Maxfield was compelled to bind the youth over to the circuit court.

Cornevale was held without bail. A couple on the part of the police to avert possible trouble immediately after the prisoner was taken from the court room, and he was held in the city hall lockup until more than an hour afterwards. Then, guarded by three officers, he was whisked away to the county jail the following morning.

But two Italians, Angelo Contante and the victim's brother, Frank Palmero, were present in the court room. About them were gathered a large number of spectators, the greater majority of which were Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway employees here who were acquainted with the Italian employes and were there to get a look at Cornevale.

Despite the efforts of Chief of Police Champion and Detective Torrist, Cornevale still maintained he had no real reason for the murder aside from his story, told and retold a hundred different times, that Mrs. Palmero's mother, Mrs. William Boschi, urged and prompted him to do away with Raffles because "he was no good" and because "he did not support his family or bring any money home to them."

From what has been learned the men were the best of friends. Palmero permitted Cornevale to board at his home and helped him along in many other ways, investigation has shown.

The prisoner claims that he was drunk when he committed the crime, but much faith is put in this statement. They have learned that he had been seen hiding near the C. & N. W. hose shed near the icehouse even previous to the night he greeted the city cent kid there, but a few minutes before he admits he shot Palmero dead. They know that he ordered Palmero from his own house three days before he shot him and they also know that Palmero, the day before he died, pleaded with a county man to avenge his death, for the sake of his children, because he knew the city cent kid was but waiting for the chance to take his life.

Women in the Case. Mrs. Palmero and her mother, Mrs. Boschi, are free. They did not appear at the city hall this morning for the examination. Mrs. Boschi today is reported to have recovered from the illness she experienced after the killing at the county jail from which she was released through the efforts of Thos. S. Nolan.

LOYAL TO G. O. P. FOR SIXTY YEARS

William Hooper Votes His Fiftieth Republican Presidential Ticket—Devoted to Party.

True devotion to the republican party and a lasting belief in its principles was shown Tuesday when William Hooper, father of J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the School for the Blind, voted for his fiftieth president. He has been a republican since the party was formed in 1856 in Ripon, Wisconsin, and today is more firmly convinced of the wisdom and strength of its ideals than ever before.

There are few men, especially in this newer section of the country, who can boast of as long a period of active participation in the national elections as can Mr. Hooper, and it is a forcible evidence of lasting character of the party and of the unity of its purpose through all these years.

Mr. Hooper regards with great disfavor the terms, progressive, reactionary, and such phrases, and condemns them as merely the creations of politicians. He states that he was greatly incensed at the breaking up of the G. O. P. four years ago, but rejoices in the coalition of the diverging elements in the party again, with a single purpose and a single group of supporters.

Mr. Hooper is one of those zealous devotees of the party principles who has stayed loyally in the support of its principles through the troublesome times of unsuccessful campaigns, and has ever in defeat maintained the justice of the party again, with a single purpose and a single group of supporters.

It is a pleasure to find these men of the old school, who have the experience of many campaigns behind them, and whose fidelity to the cause of the republican party grows more firm each year.

Digestibility of Eggs.

Medical science says that raw eggs are more quickly digested than cooked ones. Soft-boiled, roasted and poached eggs are more easily digested than when fried or hard-boiled. The stomach will digest a raw egg in from one and a half to two hours. Soft-boiled and roasted require from two and a half to three hours, while hard-boiled or fried must be allowed from three and a half to four hours for digestion.

Much Ado About Nothing.

"Wife, what's all this about? Here's a letter on fertilizers, stating that your farm needs about so many tons to the acre." "It's all right, hubby. I sent a sample of soil to the agricultural department. My geranium hasn't been doing very well."—Judge.

Tact.

A quick and sound judgment, good common sense, kind feeling, and an instinctive perception of character, in these are the elements of what is called tact, which has so much to do with acceptability and success in life. —C. Simmons.

WORLD'S YOUNGEST BANK PRESIDENT SAYS HARD WORK IS SUCCESS SECRET

Joseph P. Kennedy at his desk.

Joseph P. Kennedy, the world's youngest bank president, says hard work is the chief secret of success. He is just past his twenty-fifth birthday and is head of the Columbia Trust Company of Boston, one of the soundest financial institutions in the country.

go on ahead and it was not until he had minutely explained that the people would not permit death to lynch the prisoner and that all would be liable to prison like him, if they succeeded, that they were satisfied.

Torrist's Work Pleases.

All Janesville Italians apparently look up to Torrist for his work in bringing Cornevale to justice. This is due, no doubt, to their regard for Palmero, who was really a king to them in their colony here. Educated and versed in the ways of the American people, he was constantly helping them in their difficulties, championing their causes and careful and watchful that they were continuing on the right road to good fellowship.

Amongst them his position was enviable despite the fact that he had uncovered against him in his affairs of family since he was shot down in the yard of his home at 1121 North street two weeks ago tomorrow night. They wanted to avenge his death because he had been their good friend.

Murder Suspect Active.

Even Frank Golick, the man towards whom suspicion pointed strongest, first, was in the party last night. Golick is said to have been one of the four who originally conceived the idea.

Golick on two occasions was brought back from Chicago by Palmero after he had been sentenced to the penitentiary for the murder of his wife and children.

The second time the little section boss brought him back he hailed the man before Judge Maxfield in municipal court and advised that the best for the commitment law so that he would have to work and support his family.

Palmero literally made the man live back from Chicago. After the sentence of six months under the commitment law had been set, Palmero gave Golick a job in one of his section gangs. The police thought at the time that Golick entertained a hatred for Palmero because the latter made him live with his wife and that for this reason he would not have minded being hanged by killing Palmero. This theory exploded after more than a week of investigation.

ENJOY FINE CONCERT AT THE APOLLO CLUB

The Apollo club held the second concert on their program for the winter season last evening and in a rainy evening library hall was well filled. The program was given by the Zoellner string quartet of Brussels, Belgium. The Zoellners proved completely that chamber music is a domestic art. They are the most widely known family quartet in the world, playing in the most difficult and delicate of the most likely to be played by amateurs.

The quartet, consisting of the Zoellners, who have conquered them all. More than any other organization they have brought chamber music into the homes of the people by their ingratiating personality and their well chosen programs. The countess of Flanders decorated them with a silver medal.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

"I wonder how many of my friends know that riding in the engine cab of a fast train is the hardest kind of hard work?" asks Helen Holmes, who is seen in daring railway pictures. "There is little physical exertion about it, but the physical and mental strain is terrific. That is the chief reason why railroad companies seldom give their engineers long runs. One hundred and twenty-five miles is about the standard stretch. The photograph public knows, of course, that I am competent to drive a locomotive, for the screen has shown me doing it—and how easy it looks. "But that's a deception. When I ride in the cab of a fast engine, say at the speed of sixty to ninety miles an hour, whether I am at the throttle or on the fireman's seat, the peculiar sensation of feel of the perfectly straight track is that the engine is standing on its rear wheels and climbing, as though the pilot—never, never say 'cowcatcher'—were pointed skyward. Then when we strike a curve, even a very slight one, the sensation is that the wheels which take the outside of the curve have left the rail and the locomotive is tipping over on its side. "The first time I experienced that sensation my heart for a couple of seconds stopped beating, and under the fear that swept me I smothered in my throat. That was one of the few times in my life when I was genuinely frightened."

FARRAR SHEARS LOCKS.

Geraldine Farrar is said to have bobbed her hair that she might look more like Joan in her forthcoming production of "Joan of Arc." ### THE CASE OF BECKY.

Eyes of black, of brown, of blue, Oh, I've suffered long for you! Eyes of blue, of brown, of black, Eyes—with hooks all down the back.

"Jump, Jennings! Jump!" Mlle. Becky, the world's most fearless animal tamer, cracked her whip, and the huge lion, snarling wickedly, obediently leaped through the napkin ring she held out for him. The applause was tremendous. Again Mlle. Becky spoke sharply. "Josephus! On your tail!" The great tiger bared his teeth and struck at her with his gigantic paw. She cracked her whip. Still the furious beast spat and clawed. The tiger leaped from his perch and stood erect on his handsome tail. The applause was deafening. At that moment a mouse scampered into the cage. With a shrill French shriek, Mlle. Becky flung open the iron door and leaped out, leaving the door swinging open behind her as she fled. Luckily, attendants cap-ured the beasts before they had time to kill more than two children. Andrew Jackson's Birthplace. North and South Carolinians quarrel as to the birthplace of Andrew Jackson. A tradition has it that he was born at the Waxhaw settlement in Union county, North Carolina, but Jackson himself thought that he was born near the Waxhaw creek in Lancaster county, South Carolina. The weight of evidence seems to favor the South Carolinians.

"A PAIR OF QUEENS" WAS GOOD COMEDY

Farce-Comedy Presented at Myers Theatre Last Evening Enjoyed By Those Who Saw It.

The story of "A Pair of Queens" has to do with Peter Canby and his unmarried brother-in-law, both respectable business men, who visit an all-night restaurant in New York to get a bite to eat on their way to Canby's home after a late business conference. At an adjoining table sit two pretty women and their escorts. Canby and his brother-in-law have a couple of drinks and become acquainted with the four at the adjoining table. They are having a lively time when a row starts and the two respectable business men make a hurried departure, carrying with them a stranger's coat. Canby and his brother-in-law go home, sleep the sleep of the innocent, get up the next morning finding they have got themselves into a mess.

First they find the stranger's overcoat for which their morning paper tells them the police are searching. Then they discover that in the restaurant row a man was shot and that the coat—which afterwards turned out to be forged—disappeared with the missing overcoat. This chain of circumstances lets loose a flood of laughable situations which keeps the audience in a constant roar of joyous merriment until the final curtain descends. The company appearing in the show were not the original company by any means, but they got over a number of laughs and gave a show which was well worth the money.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What would you think of a girl who lives at a distance, but whom you have been to see recently, and whom you think dear of and have given presents to who would write and tell you that she let a fellow hug her when you have not had the same privilege yourself? She made light of it. She nags a person about last clothes. Shall I continue to write or give her up? I think I will give her up. I don't know what to do. JACK.

The girl showed very poor taste in telling you that she had let the other boy hug her, and if she told the truth she is not the girl for you. Probably she was only trying to make you jealous. Don't take the matter too seriously. At the same time don't permit her to treat you slightly. She ought not to nag you about your clothes. Suggestions can be given in a nice way so that they will not hurt and antagonize.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have had my fever for over a year and I sneeze and cough more every day. I do not feel like going to school. I have been to several doctors, but do not get better. If you know of anything that will cure me will you please print it in your paper. I feel like the only cure is a change of climate. J. B. C.

Hay fever is an autumn and winter complaint. It does not last all the year. I do not know of anything to cure the disease. You ought to have good medical attention at once. Go to the very finest doctor you can find, and don't waste any time in going.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eighteen years old and I am engaged to marry a man of twenty-one, but I do not care much for him. My father wants me to marry him because he is of a well-to-do family and he will have some money some time. He lives in Michigan in a big city and he comes to see me once in a while. My father sent me to visit his people so that I would marry him, but there is another young man I have been going with off and on for a long time and I love him. He loves me, too. He is twenty-three years old. He has no money, but he is able to work. His people are very nice, but my father doesn't want me to marry him. He is poor and he has a good home and a good father and mother. Please give me advice. MISS J.

Don't marry a man you do not love. Money isn't everything. You couldn't be happy if you were married to the richest man in the world unless you loved him, but you could be happy married to the man you love if he can only furnish you a simple but comfortable living.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please advise me. I am a young girl eighteen years old. Some months ago I met a nice young man. Then he visited me several times a week and also telephoned me. He works night work and says he must sleep day times. He only calls on me once in a while and calls me on the telephone occasionally. When he comes to see me he is very nice and brings me boxes of candy. I have not the nerve to drop him. What would you advise me to do. BROWN EYES.

You have no reason to drop him. Of course he can't spend much time calling on girls when he works nights. Don't expect the impossible of him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: If boys that I am not acquainted with smile at me is it wrong for me to smile back? DOT.

You should not recognize in any way a boy you do not know.

Household Hints

HOME GREENERY.
To Start Bulbs for Winter Flowers.—Take a large wooden bucket, put several inches of dirt in the bottom, then set your pots with the bulbs in on the dirt. Then put enough dirt in the bucket to cover all at least four inches deep. In about six weeks examine them and if they are one and one-half inches high take them out, but do not set in the sun for several days. You will have nice flowers if you do not take them out of the bucket too soon. This has been tried for years and is all right.

A Fern Dish for the Table. Without the Fern.—Take a glass dish, and kind you prefer (not too large and no less than two inches deep). Put some good soil in it, then put grapefruit seeds in and cover with more soil. Keep damp and it will not take a great while until you will have something to admire. It will stay green all winter.

THE TABLE.
Mock Chicken.—Take five nice lean pork chops, remove all fat, boil in just enough water to cook them, then there must be no water on them when done. Add butter size of walnut, three cups milk, one well-beaten egg, four enough to make consistency of chicken gravy. Salt and pepper to taste. Delicious and less expensive than chicken.

Potato Stew.—One-half pound bacon fried a light brown add three good-sized onions sliced, three quarts water, salt and pepper to taste. When all are boiling drop dumplings made of one quart flour, two teaspoons baking powder, little salt, mix with water or sweet milk very stiff; drop from spoon into stew. Cook twenty minutes no longer. Take up and serve at once.

Carrot Salad.—Two cups finely ground carrots, one-half cup ground English walnuts. Serve on lettuce leaf with a good salad dressing. This also makes a splendid sandwich filling.

Salad Dressing Without Eggs.—One tablespoon butter, one-half cup milk (or make it half evaporated milk if you like). Cook till it thickens. Now add one tablespoon mustard, mixed with a little vinegar. Four tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon salt, half cup vinegar, a little pepper. Beat vinegar mixture into the cooked milk. It is thick and creamy. This is good and will keep till you use it up.

Lardless Crust for Pies.—Two cups flour, two tablespoons sugar, two level teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. Sift twice. Place two tablespoons melted butter, one egg and one and one-fourth cups milk (or milk and water) in cup and add to sifted flour. Don't handle much. Divide in two or three parts and place in deep cake tins, making room in center for mince or pumpkin filling. Bake twenty minutes in quick oven. Will serve six or eight people. This makes two layers or three small cakes.

Grasshopper Bread.—One-half cup sugar, one-half cup molasses, two cups sweet milk, one teaspoon soda dissolved in hot water, three cups granulated flour, four tablespoons melted butter stirred in last. Steam two hours. Bake in over half hour with slow fire.

OATMEAL DISHES.
Oatmeal is both nourishing and inexpensive. Below are some tested recipes:

Oatmeal Bread.—Boil two cups oatmeal. When cold, add one cake yeast broken in bits and dissolved in one-half cup warm water, one teaspoon salt, one-half cup molasses. Stir in enough flour to make a stiff dough. Form into loaves and place in greased tins to raise. Bake in hot oven one hour. Make three loaves.

Oatmeal Muffins.—Sift one cup flour, one-half cup sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. To one cup cooked oatmeal add one cup milk, one tablespoon melted butter, two eggs. Beat well, add flour, bake in hot oven one-half hour.

Luncheon Dainty.—Place layer of cooked oatmeal in baking dish, add layer of apricots which have been pressed through a sieve. Sprinkle with sugar. Repeat until dish is filled. Pour over it one and one-half cups apricot juice and bake three-fourths hour. Serve with whipped cream.

Oatmeal Soup.—Boil one-half cup oats in one quart water. Add one half cup raisins, one-half cup sugar, and two cups milk, add one teaspoon salt. Boil again. Serve with crackers.

Shows the Country's Growth.
The report of the first census is contained in an octavo volume of 56 pages. Nowadays in a decade the census bureau issues 100 or more quarto volumes with more than 400,000 pages.

The Highflyers

Tom Falls to Appear On the Second Evening After the Quarrel and Majory Entertain Herself.

Majory Gerard had dragged through the second dreary day since her husband had gone away in a rage because she had refused to get up and get his breakfast, and nearing the time when he would come home to dress for dinner. They always dined out and rarely did they take their meals twice in the same place. It is so exciting to take dinner in new places," Majory said.

The evening before when he failed to appear the wife in a fit of retributive anger had called up her girl friends and organized a theater party. Then they had ordered dinner at a fashionable restaurant. Tonight she did not feel like going out; besides, she had spent all the money Tom had given her to pay on her dressmaking bill—and even then she had to get the dinner charged. What was she to do if Tom failed to come home this second evening? Majory was very nervous and watched the clock anxiously.

"It is six, and he is not coming," she admitted reluctantly as the French clock on the mantel chimed the hour. "Whatever shall I do?" She wasted several precious minutes wiping away the angry tears that sprang to her eyes.

"I can't give another party, or do anything expensive for I have spent all my money," she reflected, and

WOMEN WHOSE FIANCES ARE KILLED IN WAR NOW ADDRESSED AS FRAU.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Karlsruhe, Baden, Nov. 8.—The authorities of the grand duchy of Baden have found a welcome solution to the problem that has long bothered them of how to address women whose fiancés have been killed in the war and who regard themselves as wedded even though no ceremony ever took place. By order of the grand duke to the ministry of justice such women are entitled to call themselves and to be called "Frau" instead of "Fraulein" if they can establish satisfactorily that they were engaged, with earnest intention of being married, to men who have been killed in the war or who are reported as missing for a specified length of time.

Unwritten Poetry.
Many people suppose that poetry is something to be found only in books, contained in lines of ten syllables with like endings; but wherever there is a sense of beauty, or power, or harmony, as in the motion of a wave of the sea, in the growth of a flower that spreads its sweet leaves to the sun, and dedicates its beauty to the sun—there is poetry in its birth.—Hazlitt.

If Ivory Soap were no purer, milder, or higher grade than ordinary soaps it still would be far more pleasant to use because of its lather.

The Ivory lather is formed quickly. It is thick and copious so that the entire body can be covered easily. It holds together and lasts so that the skin can be massaged thoroughly without having the soap become dry and stiff. And it is rinsed away as quickly as it is made because it contains no unsaponified oil to make it stick to the skin.

GERMAN SCIENTISTS DISCOVER A NEW INK; A BOON TO PARENTS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, Nov. 8.—"War ink" is the latest invention to supply an existing need. The minister of education announces the invention of a fluid highly adaptable to school work, which does not penetrate loosely woven paper nor blot as ordinary ink does, and which within a short time will be ready for introduction into all public schools. The chief advantage of the new ink is that it enables pupils to use cheaper paper for the exercise, and makes them independent of the glazed papers that ordinarily take ink successfully.

TEETOTALISM AS A FINANCIAL ASSET.

Now that the office seeker has been paid off by the verdict of the people for his careless affability, and the bets are all settled, and old friends have become enemies, and the country is once more started on the road to perdition, let us inquire whether it pays to be a temperate drinker—not a moderate drinker. The moderate drinker is poisoning. He is no longer an institution, but just a sorry spectacle. But the temperate drinker is still indigenous, and has as much contempt for the moderate drinker as the moderate drinker has for the plain soise.

Life insurance companies have little sentiment and less moral prejudice about drinking. A risk is risk, and as such he is accepted or rejected, regardless of his political, religious or ethical character. The sole question with the life insurance company is: How long is this candidate likely to stay on earth paying premiums? The longer he stays with us the less we must tax him for his policy.

The experience of American life insurance companies was recently analyzed in respect to the mortality among abstainers, temperate drinkers and moderate or habitual users of alcohol. It was found that the death rate among the abstainers was about 15 per cent less than the rate among the temperate or occasional drinkers, and the rate among the occasional drinkers was 25 per cent less than the rate among the moderate or habitual drinkers. Thus the total abstainer is a distinctly better risk, longer-lived than the occasional drinker.

These statistics mean something, because they were not gathered to bolster up a controversial claim, but are the cold facts of record. The people who furnished the figures are interested solely in the almighty dollar. It is therefore a better investment than the young man who occasionally takes a glass of beer for social reasons, or the woman who means to be sober because he is a teetotaler, alone. But because he is temperate in all things and a teetotaler as regards abstinence from alcohol, or in other words, his character is strong enough to resist the importunities of those who make it their business to make fools out of weaklings.

Teetotalism, young fellow, is a financial asset. Have you money to throw away?

THE HAT ALL.
The best dressed woman I know came into my yard the other morning with a hat-box. "Want to see my new hat?" she asked. "I have never seen a woman who didn't want to see a new hat? The other feminine members of the family, shouting excitement, looked about us. The Best Dressed Woman carefully untied the tape and produced the hat. It was a beauty—tiny, smart, graceful, and of an odd color and unusual material. A single, stunning little ornament was the only trimming.

Would be Much Mistaken.
It was the kind of thing a man would expect to cost two or three dollars because it was so simple. The Best Dressed Woman put the hat on. Immediately it became more charming.

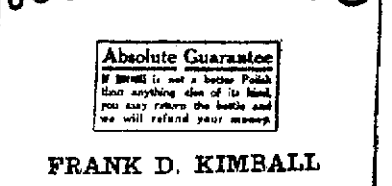

When we had raved for several minutes, someone said: "I thought you told us the war had affected your husband's business?" "It has," she said, "and since you ask me point blank, I paid twenty dollars for the hat."

We opened our eyes in astonishment. Twenty dollars for a hat may spell poverty in some circles, but it doesn't in ours.

Instead of a New Suit.
"My dear, this hat takes the place of a suit," she explained. "I was due for a suit this year, but I had to have a hat and shoes and some other things. At first I was going to try and scrimp and get them all in, and then I decided that I would go without a new suit and put it into the hat and shoes. I studied it out and I've come to the conclusion that they are the things that count the most. You see, woman's hat before you see anything else and remember it longer. It's a frame for her face. If a woman has a well-tailored, conservative suit and a chic hat and smart-looking feet, she makes a much better all-round impression than a woman in an expensive, up-to-the-minute suit, if her hat is commonplace and her feet are unattractively shod."

She Was Still "The Best Dressed Woman."
"Wait," finished the Best Dressed Woman, "until you see my shoes." I saw her yesterday on the trolley. Her last year's suit was pressed and freshened. She wore the hat and the shoes, and she deserved her title. Perhaps some of the women who cannot find money for a fresh outfit this season will find her clothes philosophy interesting.

Optimistic Thought.
Better an egg today than a hen tomorrow.

Hardy glanced at the large double cabin a hundred yards off to the right of the road. The broad front porch gave it a homelike appearance. The two cabins before him were very small. Beyond them stood the big agency warehouse. Its overhanging upper story showed that it had been built for use as a blockhouse, but the many windows had rendered it less defensible than one of the cabins. The only persons in sight were the two Indian police who had been left in charge by Redbear.

"Well?" repeated Vandervyn. "Not an easy place to defend," said Hardy. "Where is the office and the guardhouse?"

"The office is in the near front corner of the warehouse. The police quarters are in the other end. You see the white tepees over there across the creek? Most of the relations of the police camp near the agency. This first cabin is Nogen's—yours, I should say. The second is mine."

"Your quarters? May I ask you for a bite of lunch as soon as I have rubbed down my mare?"

"I heard with the Duponts, but I can scare up a cold lunch," said Vandervyn. As they dismounted, Redbear came up and successfully curried favor with the new agent by offering to curry his mare. He led her away to the low brush stable beyond the warehouse.

After lunch, though still weary from his long ride, Hardy put in the rest of the day inspecting the agency property and examining the accounts of the two clerks. With the exception of two or three small items on Redbear's books, everything checked accurately.

Vandervyn brought bacon, coffee, crackers and canned food, and the new agent cooked supper with the skill of an old campaigner. After they had eaten, the chief clerk produced cigars in anticipation of a social evening. But Hardy was so drowsy that he asked to be excused. The moment he was alone, he laid his rifle and automatic pistol in the bunk, blew out the candle, and tumbled in on his blankets, without troubling to close either the door or the one small window.

The next morning Hardy and Vandervyn were seated in the agency office when Redbear came in and started to shuffle around on his desk, on the other side of the office partition.

"Wait!" said Hardy. "I wish the chiefs and headmen of the tribe summoned to meet me in council as soon as possible."

"It is a day's ride to the camps farthest back in the mountains," remarked Vandervyn.

Hardy considered, and looked up at Redbear.

"Does not this tribe use smoke signals?"

"Not for a long time, not since I was a boy, sir. I never learned how to do it."

"That old sergeant of police will know," predicted Hardy. "Come!"

Vandervyn lingered behind the others, and followed them only to the rear corner of the warehouse. When he had seen them ride off across Sioux creek towards the highest of the mountains that encircled the valley, he went back into the office, opened the safe, and carefully sorted over its contents. All letters addressed to the late agent and to himself he took out and looked in his desk.

Meantime Hardy and Redbear with the police sergeant passed through the camp of the families of the police, where they added two old bucks to their party. A pony trail led up through the pines on the mountainside to the bare granite crag of the summit. Mid-afternoon found the Indians standing around a greenwood fire, alternately covering it with a blanket and permitting puffs of the dense smoke to rise in the still air.

In less than half an hour Hardy's glasses showed him an answering smoke on a peak fifteen or twenty miles distant. When he called attention to it, the police sergeant pointed out still another smoke signal off to the left of the first and several miles farther away. The old bucks turned from the fire and started down to where the mare and ponies had been left.

"The chiefs will come tomorrow," Redbear interpreted the answer to Hardy's inquiry.

The faded buckboard ponies were tugging their load up the slope of the terrace when Hardy came down the line of agency buildings at a gallop. Marie Dupont was driving; but on the seat beside her was a brown-eyed, olive-skinned girl, who averted her handsome face with childish shyness as Hardy wheeled his mare and reined up alongside.

Marie flushed under the officer's direct gaze, though, unlike her companion, she did not seek to avoid it. He raised his hat with punctilious politeness. She bowed, and, gazing back at him with a level gaze, quietly remarked: "Good afternoon, Captain Hardy. I have brought your luggage."

"That was very kind of you," said Hardy as he glanced at the other girl.

Marie smiled in instant appreciation of the fact that he had spoken to her as to an equal. She patted her companion's work-reddened hand with her gloved fingers. "This is Charlie Redbear's sister Olna. They did not treat her well at school, so she ran away to come home. I want her to live with me; but she says she must be with her brother. You will not send her back?"

The young girl looked at the new agent with a smile of timid appeal, and as quickly drooped her head in bashful embarrassment. Hardy's gaze softened, and he answered reassuringly:

"The Chiefs Will Come Tomorrow," Interpreted Redbear.

"Rearbear spoke of his sister. It will be all right."

"You are most kind to say it," approved Marie with the condescension of a gracious young queen. "Captain Hardy, we shall expect you to dine with us this evening. I shall send over your luggage in a few minutes. You need not dress for dinner."

CHAPTER IV.

The First Card.

As Hardy was unpacking his scant wardrobe, an Indian boy came to the door, thrust in his head and announced gutturally:

"M'ree him say you come six."

Hardy nodded to the boy and signed him to go. Ten minutes later he stepped up on the porch of the Dupont house. Before he could knock, Dupont stepped from the rear door of his trade store, which faced away from the porch.

"Hello, Cap!" he greeted the guest with blithely cordiality. "Glad to see you walk right in."

Hardy crossed the threshold and paused. The floor was covered to resemble waxed hardwood. The oriental rugs were real. The walls were papered with a quiet tapestry pattern. The adobe fireplace was set with a modern grate and faced with a tile mantel. The few pictures were well chosen. There was no sign of the guns, skins and Navajo blankets that Hardy had expected to see.

Vandervyn, lounging in an easy chair beside the small, well-filled bookcase, looked up and smiled in boyish enjoyment of the new agent's surprise.

Dupont grunted apologetically: "Don't think I'm plumb crazy. It's all Marie—Said she couldn't live here unless she had things just like in Ottawa. Cried till I had to give in."

"Don't you let him con you, captain," chuckled Vandervyn. "It was Jake who wept because Marie sent on one more order and he had to foot the bill."

"Well, anyway, there wasn't nobody she could hire to do the work, and I had to go out on roundup," Dupont sought to cover his discomfort. "She set to and done it all her own self. I didn't have to pay a cent for that. Sit down, Cap. Make yourself to home. Hey, Marie, you there? Here's Cap Hardy. Bring in that bottle me and Mr. Van was sampling will you?"

Hardy picked the stiffest chair in the room, sat down—and promptly rose to a position of polite attention. A young lady had appeared in the doorway at the side of the room—a young lady in a semidolce gown, of lines irreconcilable, the creamy whiteness of her full, round throat displayed. Her mass of coal-black hair was dressed in the very latest mode. Her cheeks were as highly colored as if rouged.

Vandervyn gazed at her with the brand of admiration that passes over the footlights from the first-row seats to the prettiest girl in the chorus. Hardy bowed as he would have saluted his colonel's lady or the daughter of a Moro chief, if either had been his hostess.

The girl's eyes sparkled as she noted his change of dress, his immaculate linen, and clean-shaven chin. His bow won a smile that may have been due either to gratified vanity or to a commendable self-respect. She greeted him in a tone that caused Vandervyn to straighten in his chair. "It is a great pleasure to have you dine with us."

"The pleasure is mine, Miss Dupont," declared Hardy.

"You've hit it, Cap," put in Dupont. "You can just bet your bottom dollar on it you won't kick yourself for coming when you get to her feed-trough."

The girl's sable-black eyes dilated and her perfectly molded chin rose a fraction of an inch. She placed the tray on a tea table, bowed composedly, and left the room. Vandervyn looked at Hardy with an ironical smile. The silent mockery was wasted. Hardy was watching Dupont uncork the whisky bottle.

"One moment, Mr. Dupont," he said. "As you are my host, the question is an awkward one to ask—yet is there not a law or a rule of the Indian bureau against bringing liquor upon a reservation?"

Dupont stared around at the inquirer in blank surprise. Before he could find words to answer, Vandervyn replied for him: "According to the strict letter of the law, captain, you are right. You can't fancy that Jake would be fool enough to sell liquor to the Indians?"

"By Gosh, you bet I don't—not when it's ten-year-old rye," qualified Dupont. "You can't get no better stuff out of Canada. Marie made me buy some wine, too, to celebrate your coming. She said it was up to us to loosen up, seeing as you had shooed off them bucks."

"Ah, since you put it that way," Hardy accepted the explanation. "I must ask you, however, not to bring anything more of the kind across the river."

"Of course he will not, if you object," assured Vandervyn. "Nogen didn't read the law as you do; but if you believe in dry weather for ourselves as well as for the Indians, you're the boss."

"Sure, and here's one all round to show there ain't no hard feeling," said Dupont.

He poured out three drinks, each measured to the brim of a whisky glass. His own and Vandervyn's disappeared at a gulp. Hardy took a sip, and asked for a seltzer. The bottle was handed around another time and

Uric Acid Poisoning!

The most eminent physicians recognize that uric acid stored up in the system is the cause of rheumatism, that this uric acid poison is present in the joints, muscles, or nerves. By experimenting and analysis at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. Pierce discovered a combination of native remedies that he called Anuric—which drives out the uric acid from the system, and in this way the pain, swelling and inflammation subside. If you are a sufferer from rheumatism, backache, pains here or there, you can obtain Anuric at any drug store and get relief from the pains and ills brought about by uric acid; or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package Anuric—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

found him not yet finished with his first drink. But Dupont had already begun to mellow.

"Here's to your bottled shirt, Cap," he toasted.

"Stand-up collar and a white shirt. It's sure a high-toned celebration. Better wear 'em careful. You'll have to mail 'em a hundred miles to the nearest Chinaman when they get dirty."

"Cheaper to throw them away, and send a mail order to Chicago for new ones," put in Vandervyn. He added, as he adjusted the fashionable tie that was hardly in keeping with his gray flannel shirt: "But you'll soon take to the local styles."

Marie again appeared in the doorway. She bowed to the guests with impressive formality.

"If you will enter, gentlemen."

Dinner Stories

A school inspector, testing a class in fractions, asked a boy, whether given his choice, he would prefer one-sixth or one-seventh of an orange. The boy promptly replied that he would prefer one-seventh. The inspector more promptly explained that such action would be foolish, because, though the suggested fraction might seem the larger, just the reverse was true.

"I know, sir," said the boy, "that's why I chose it. I don't like oranges."

Two English soldiers caused some amusement at a golf course the other day. The first man teed up and made a mighty swipe, but failed

A PROMINENT PORTAGE WOMAN.

Portage, Wis.—"About six years ago I got to feeling quite poorly. I was weak, seemed that I had no energy or strength; in fact, I was all run down. My mother was taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at the time, so I began taking it, and I was all right in about five weeks' time—was feeling fine. My strength came back and I have been in the best of health ever since. Favorite Prescription is a great medicine and I do heartily recommend it." Mrs. Velton, Fox, 502 Pleasant Street, W.

"For heaven's sake, Bill," he broke out, "hit the thing. You know we have only four days' leave."

Three young chaps were eating in a downtown restaurant and incidentally trying to flirt with the pretty waitress. After devouring everything in sight they decided to have some ice cream and cake.

"What kind will you have? Devil's food, plain or nut cakes?" asked the waitress.

"Give me devil's food," said two of them, and the other asked for walnut cake.

"Two devils and one nut," cried the bright young girl.

"So Mike Brown is dead! I understand his life was insured for $50,000. That will provide for his widow very nicely, provided she invests it wisely."

"Yes, but the indications are that she is thinking of investing it in another husband."

Joy in Little Things.

Yes, there is joy in little things. We don't have to wear silk-lined opera capes or eat lunch in a French restaurant to have a good time. No matter how humble our home or narrow our life's path may be, if we are blessed with health there are numberless little joys awaiting us whichever way we turn, but we must train our eyes to see them and our hands to grasp them, and finally we must tell others less observant of the treasure box we've found.

A MEDICAL TREATISE

By J. B. C. YOUNG.

The little nurse was coming down the hallway with a tray for her patient in room 16. It was about four o'clock, and, of course, Mac Thompson was standing somewhere near, with his hands in his pockets and his hat on the back of his head, waiting for her. Beside him stood Bill Fields, who immediately brought his hands together and bowed profoundly when he saw her coming.

"Hello, Miss Arthur," said Mac, with a most irritating smile.

"How do you do?" said the little nurse primly, and marched on with her tray.

"Allow me," said Mac, as he pushed open the door.

"Thank you, Mr. Thompson." And she whisked past him into the room. Bill disappeared down the hall, and Mac sauntered up and down and waited for his tormentor to reappear.

Out she whisked and was proceeding to pass him with another sweet and preoccupied smile when he caught her apron.

"Let me go this instant, Mac. Let go my apron. I just wish you medical students wouldn't come bothering me when I'm busy."

"Hey? Plural? Which ones have been bothering you? Give me their names. I'll see to them directly. I'm the only medical student licensed to bother you." Mac took out his notebook and pen with a flourish and looked at her in a business-like way.

She had to laugh. "Mac, you ridiculous thing, you'll never be sensible. But, seriously now, you are interrupting me in my work. I wish you would go away." She screwed her face up into a frown.

"I've got my orders. Farewell, cruel young woman." And then he turned right about and walked stumpy down the hall.

"What a boy!" she said scornfully, with a smile at the corner of her mouth.

How she longed to shake him, as she watched him cross the street from hospital that night. Strange how she watched for him every night.

"Hello, honey!" he said next night, when she came out of room 16 with her arms full.

She had just been thinking of him, and she looked up with a smile that was too brilliant to be anything but genuine. Mac's face lost its bantering look and he stooped and kissed the upturned face.

"You darling!" he said huskily.

But the little nurse was petrified with horror. Had he thought she was glad to see him? Did he dare to think she had wanted to see him?

"Oh, how dare you? I—I—" Her thoughts trailed off into nothingness, and she made her escape into her room and had a good weep for very rage. "How dare he? Horrid thing! He took advantage! I'll never, never, never—" But she did not say what she would never do.

"Miss Arthur," Mac was standing before her in the doorway when she came out of a room next evening. There was grim determination in his face, and the little nurse was panicky. Oh, for anything to stave this reckoning off!

"Oh no! Oh, no, no!" she stammered, and would have fled. He turned quickly, and caught his finger in the door-lamb.

"Jove!" he muttered forcefully, as he rescued his hand and examined it. "Oh, Mac, I've hurt you! How did I do it? Do let me see it, please do!"

Now, Mac, naturally a wily young man, saw his advantage at once, and drew his face up into a still more ex-cruciating scowl.

"Jove!" he said again, pretending that the pain made him oblivious of her presence.

"Dear Mac, do let me see it. I'll bandage it. I'm so sorry, Mac, dear." The little nurse was so truly distressed that she did not care what she said.

"Not out here, come on into this empty room. Jove, but it pains! Are you very sorry?"

"Oh, yes, so sorry!"

"Shame!" thought Mac to himself, "but it's got to be done." He raised a pained face to her sorrow-stricken one. "Would you be sorry if my hand had to be amputated?"

"Oh, Mac!" And she buried her head on his arm in tears.

"Would you marry a man with only one hand?"

The little nurse nodded her head, choking with sobs, and Mac cheerfully grinned over her head and winked his eye at the window.

"Oh, but you would rather have a good article than a damaged one." "I love you anyway, Mac."

"Then it's all right, girle, for I didn't hurt my hand at all," said Mac cheerfully, printing another kiss on the astonished face of the little nurse. She was so relieved that she kissed him in return.

"Mac, where are you?" came Bill's voice from the hall outside.

"Here."

"Coming to class meeting?" said Bill, putting his head inside the door.

"What the deuce are you doing inside here? Eh? Well, I'll be— Congratulations!" Bill vanished discreetly.

A few minutes later Mac came out of the hospital with a jaunty step. He waved his hand at the little nurse, who openly stood at the window and smiled.

WRITES VERSES TO DISPEL TEDIUM OF PRISON EXISTENCE

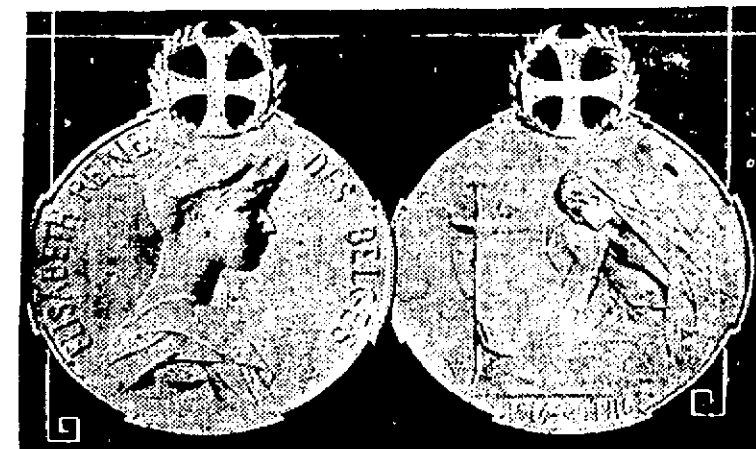

Henry E. Yontsey.

Henry E. Yontsey, who has served sixteen years for complicity in the murder of Democratic Senator William Goebel of Kentucky in 1899, has turned to poetry to dispel the tedium of prison existence. His first volume of poems on prison life will appear shortly. He has always protested his innocence.

Evidence of Eyewitness.
A small boy recently attended the theater. In the play a false servant stole a valuable ring. The master in anger called the servant before him and attempted to gain a confession. "Who stole the ring?" he thundered. Then and there the little fellow, who had been deeply engrossed, called out: "The man with the red stockings."

Denny Sullivan, who bore the title of manager with the St. Joseph club of the Western league the past season, says he is done with baseball and hereafter will devote all his time to practicing medicine. Otto Williams is said to be a receptive candidate for the job of relieving Jack Holland's orders to St. Joe players.

Jack Graney, the Cleveland Indian outfielder, is going to high school all through the winter, determined to complete his education and to be a doctor. He can't play ball forever, he considers. Jack's pup Larry is the Indian mascot and the pet of all American league players.

Too much reading and too many movies are blamed for the condition of Vic Sator's eyes, which are said to be so bad he may have to leave the team. Sator has owned the Cub's first sack to give his a complete rest throughout the winter.

A ball player's penchant for lying about his age is proverbial, but the testimony of the wife of Ed Holtz, her suit for divorce offers a new angle. She says in her suit that Holtz told her a ball player had to have a young wife, so he deserted her and picked up with a girl of more tender years, took her south with him and passed her off as his wife, apparently with the idea that her youth would give the impression that he also was a youngster. And he seems to have fooled them in Mobile at that.

Nailing the story that has been going the rounds that Joe Tinker would have to take a deep cut in salary if he kept his job as manager of the Chicago Cubs, President Weeghman says if the manager of his team is not good enough to earn the salary, he is not good enough to have around. Tinker doesn't exactly answer the question of whether Tinker will be retained or not. Tinker is said to have drawn $12,000 a year from the Weeghman treasury.

"Watch Sam Rice hit that pill next year. That young man stands a chance of leading the league with the stick, and no one knows it better than Ty Cobb, who owned Rice's ability," said Manager Griffith the other day. "Sam Rice will prove one of our most valuable men. He has speed enough to make himself one of the most competent of sprinters and, with a little more experience will gain a lot of stolen bases." Rice is wintering in Chicago, where the cold weather will keep him in fine fettle and with a warm place to train in the spring he ought to be in his best form when next season opens.

Doc Johnson, former Pittsburgh first baseman, recently released to Birmingham, has returned to his home in Chattanooga, Tenn., where he says he will stay. Johnson's club wanted to buy him before it got Fred Merkle, but that Pittsburgh wouldn't let him go, thus beating him out of a share in the world's series money, and then shipped him to the minors. Johnson admits that Pittsburgh couldn't very well spare him at the time, but at that thinks he got a bad deal.

Announcement comes from New York State league circles that Dr. Tate, who owns the Reading (former Albany) franchise in that league, has decided to retain George Wiltse as his manager for next year. The club owner has made the positive announcement that he has paid claims against Reading territory and means to continue to operate in Reading, where the patronage was fairly satisfactory after the shift from Albany last summer.

Harold Cable, infielder, who was sent to the Newark Internationals last spring and recalled in the fall, has been sold by the New York club to the Athletics. Cable played 127 games with Newark, hit .267 and stole 20 bases, besides putting up a solid season. Cable came from Mack took him over several times and was much taken by his style.

The Chicago city series was started in 1902. The two city teams did not meet in 1907, 1908 and 1910 because in those years the Cubs were in the world's series while the 1906 series between them was a world's series as well. In all the two Chicago teams have met in 65 games. Of these the White Sox have won 37 and the Cubs 28. The 1903 series was a draw, the Cubs won in 1905, 1909 and 1912 and in the other years, including 1906, the White Sox were victors.

Peculiar Russian Dish.
One of the national dishes of Russia is known as the Pashka. It is a sort of cake that stands one and a half feet high, and is always put on a tall base. It is usually surmounted by a sugar cross, and is placed in the center of the table when the Russians hold their great feast of Easter when the fast is broken. It takes about 80 eggs to make the Pashka, but none but natives can succeed in producing the rare taste.

Much Need for It.
The people of India reverence the tree called Ficus Religiosa, or the Peepul tree, because they say you can never tell a lie beneath it. For this reason they always put it in places remote from where they sell anything. What a splendid thing it would be if it could be planted throughout our cities.—Selected.

THE PEOPLE'S RULE.
While the final result is undetermined as to whom the electors of the United States have chosen, the election of Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, has demonstrated one thing most decisively, and that is that the eastern states no longer control the destinies of the nation as far as an election goes, and the west has risen in its might and shown its strength in a most decisive manner.

The days of past decades when an election was decided by New York, or some one of the middle west states, appears to have passed and it is to the great northwest and the Pacific coast that politicians and the future campaigns must turn their attention to secure the selection of their candidate.

The south, as solid as ever, has given its vote to the democratic party. New York, New Jersey and the New England states, with Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, have shown allegiance to the republican candidate, but upon such states as Indiana, North Dakota, Wyoming, Oregon, California, West Virginia, and Delaware depends the selection. Kansas and New Mexico also play their part in this ultimate verdict much to the surprise of politicians.

First returns Tuesday night apparently gave a overwhelming drift in favor of Wilson, but later returns drifted in from the middle west, the north-west and the Pacific coast, the majority dwindled. Men who went to bed confident that Hughes had won, awoke this morning to find that overnight their hopes had been shattered and Wilson appeared to be the favorite.

But how spring eternal is shown by the claims today of the managers of both the candidates, each claiming the election of their favorite by good, safe margins. However, time will tell the tale, and the result may not be known for several days yet, and again it may be decided within a few hours. Meanwhile the people rule.

ELECTION RETURNS.

People who sit up election night often ask why returns are so slow coming in. They complain about the slowness of news that filter in. Frequently these returns give no comparisons with previous years. This gives absolutely no idea which side is gaining or losing.

Of course the counting, dispatching, and tabulating of 15,000,000 ballots, cast in several hundred thousand political places, is a "some job." But they must be a million men working on it election night. The news ought to come in systematically and promptly.

Formerly many thousands of political precincts had neither railroad nor telegraph connection. In many cases arrangements had to be made for carrying the returns on horseback or by team.

Now there are comparatively few precincts that are not connected by telephone. If there is delay, it may be because the counters are lazy. More commonly it is because someone has carried the return home in his pocket and has forgotten to telephone it. It will take a vigorous punch by telephone to awaken him to that fact next day or later. Returns are often held up for some legal technicality or political sleight of hand. Election officers ought to know the law well enough to avoid such pitfalls.

A whole nation eagerly awaits results of a presidential election. In many cases vital personal interests are affected. The public should not be kept waiting. Every election officer and every newspaper representative should help get the news on the wires at the earliest possible moment.

In some towns that are habitually late could hear the newspaper people and election watchers growl about their ways, they would realize that they are not getting a valuable kind of advertising.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSES.

It is a motley crowd of motorists when you find out on the automobile highways today. Many of them come hundreds or even thousands of miles. The man who wrecks your car and runs away may come from a state where no safeguards whatever are thrown about the running of high powered machines.

Practice in this matter varies greatly in different states. In some the novice motorist must pass a real examination before he is turned loose for wear or woe. The examination requires him to shift his machine around in narrow spaces and steer on narrow roads until he has shown that he is a real driver.

But in other states practically no restrictions are thrown about motor running. Novices are allowed on the public ways in command of a powerful locomotive capable of smashing a strong fence to its atoms. There is no safeguard but their own caution and judgment. Their caution may be all right, but their experience is limited. They do not realize how fast they are going or how quickly the materials for a grand smash arrange themselves. Arriving at some tight spot, their presence of mind gives way, and they push the accelerator instead of putting their foot on the brake. It is fortunate if they, and not the innocent victims, are the ones to go to the hospital.

There are some states that are pretty loose in the matter of licensing automobiles, yet which are quite strict with any person who has had an accident. They argue that the worst accidents are not caused by novices, but by experienced drivers who have grown reckless.

Still the roads would be a lot safer if green drivers were compelled by the state to take a longer course of tutelage. It does not take long to learn to drive an automobile with a fair degree of skill. A month's practice, several times a week, should make most people competent. It would not hurt them to demonstrate this competence before being turned loose at their powerful thrills.

13 MONTHS TO CONGRESS.
The newly elected congress, re-elected Tuesday, unless called in extra session, does not meet until December, 1917. Almost every one will admit that this arrangement is anomalous, and contrary to all principles of successful business.

In private life, if you employ a new man you want him on the job at once. Holdovers can not be expected to put much energy into their work. If you are taking on a new set of men or new ideas, you want to try them out as soon as possible. If the men and ideas are good, you want the benefit in the least possible time; if they are futile, you want to know it as soon as possible.

The short session of congress immediately following election traditionally never does much but pass appropriation bills. Even where the same party is retained in power, there is a lot of members who are not keen for work. The session is perfunctory. Yet there is a host of big problems immediately demanding attention. Many meritorious propositions fail because congress can not get around to them.

The present arrangement does not perhaps incur any great loss. Yet it is a number of unbusinesslike things that tend to make the government less efficient than private business. But you could never make a political issue out of a proposition to have the new congress meet in a month after it was elected, in such a month. There are no votes in such a proposal.

It all shows that issues have to appeal to the popular imagination in order to force themselves on the politicians. The latter are looking for a program that will make votes. But there is a growing number of people who appreciate direct, business-like methods. The man and the party that can remedy some minor defects like this will make itself popular with a class of people who appreciate good, systematic work.

Our fathers fought, bled, and died to secure the privilege of electing our own rulers, while we are profoundly thankful that we don't have to do any more electing of those rulers for four more years.

Commenting on the women of New York, one writer says that Manhattan is the city of the powder puff. Perhaps the City of the Paint Brush would be a more accurate description.

Looking at it from a purely selfish viewpoint, while the war makes prices much higher, it is killing of great numbers of obnoxious and trouble-making people.

There is a growing feeling among merchants that people who return goods and expect full price should bring them back before they are all worn out.

A great many people are now driving high-powered automobiles on the public streets who formerly weren't considered competent to handle a baby carriage.

The newly elected congressmen assure the public that they will attend faithfully to the duty of paying their political debts with public offices.

After denouncing the robber trusts, the farmers proceed to make a combine to raise the prices of milk.

The American National Guard is joining the National Guard. "Let George do it."

SITTING ONE OUT.
She smiled and smiled a happy smile.
Then nestled in his arm's embrace.
Two eyes of lovely blue she gazed.
Gazed in his face.

He bent to kiss her lips so red.
She leaned to return him the same.
"Love you, little girl," he said.
"What is your name?"

The True Story of Little Audley.

(Complete in this issue.)
There was a child whose rearing had been so faultless and in whom had been instilled by a fond mother and three fat aunts so many of the most wholesome moral precepts that at the age of nine he was dearly loved by every small boy on the block. Oh, but he was.

Feeling the most delicate consideration for the affection they had for him he strove to retain it. Rather than pain them with a sense of their own inferior and unchastened nature he would endeavor to avoid a meeting. If he saw them coming he would go home up a alley.

Dr. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

Sixty Years the Standard

Made from Cream of Tartar

His father noting this disposition in little Audley had been observed on one occasion to go out on the porch and with his right boot walk the cat far over among the neighbor's dahlias.

Once it is true Audley had words and a little scene with the boys. It was in this way.

Passing a group as they jostled and hooted in their rough play he heard one of them use coarse language.

"Dr. you!" the boy said, turning to threaten a smaller companion. Audley paused to regard them and silently frowned a rebuke.

My little readers will be astonished to hear how ungrateful and ill-mannered were the boys. Audley had spoken but a few well-chosen words of reproof when several of the largest boys in the crowd laughed.

Another, a bit bolder than the rest, stepped forward and reached out as though to slap Audley's hand, skipping away with a little scream.

Several of them called him "Ethel."

Another asked him for a little kiss. His cheeks burning with indignation Audley hurried away determined never again to incur any of their evil courses.

When he related it all at home with many sobs his mother and aunts gathered about another laughing. Another, a bit bolder than the rest, stepped forward and reached out as though to slap Audley's hand, skipping away with a little scream.

One day, however, while Audley was skipping rope with a neighbor's daughter several of the boys came up and took him with them to their shanty club rooms. Audley didn't want to go and he was real wroth when he got there. He was glad he had scratched the nose of the ring-leader, a loutish fellow of eleven.

That night his mother gave him a hot bath and fixed his black eye. Then she put the clothes he had worn in the rag bag.

While she was thus engaged the bell rang and Audley's father went to the door. There was a boy there and Audley's father gave him the fifty cents.

The boy had a scratch on his nose.

CIRCUIT COURT WILL TRY JIM THE GUNMAN; SEEKS SPEEDY TRIAL

JUDGE MAXFIELD THIS MORNING BINDS ITALIAN BOY MURDERER OVER AND HOLDS HIM WITHOUT BAIL.

CASE SET FOR MARCH

Court Places Trial Date For Next Term Before Judge George Grimm Which Comes In 1917.

Vincent Cornevale, the twenty-two year old Italian lad who Monday afternoon confessed to Detective Dan G. Torrisi that he fired the shots which killed Raffles Palmero on the night of October 26, this morning before Judge Maxfield in municipal court waived examination and was held for trial in the Rock county circuit court.

Judge Maxfield stipulated the first day of the next term of the court as that on which Cornevale was to be tried. Since the October term has been postponed until December 10th, the next term will be in March, 1917. It is not thought that the case can be placed on the present calendar for a trial in December.

Wanted Quick Trial. The present term of the court he was ready for immediate trial and would plead guilty at once. Since the jurisdiction of a sentence for murder lies without that of the police, Judge Maxfield was compelled to bind the youth over to the circuit court.

Cornevale was held without bail. A couple on the part of the police, he was held without bail. A couple on the part of the police, he was held without bail. A couple on the part of the police, he was held without bail.

Men Were Friends. From what has been learned the men were the best of friends. Palmero permitted Cornevale to board at his home and helped him along in many other ways, investigation has shown.

The prisoner claims that he was drunk when he committed the crime but not much faith is put in this statement. They have learned that he had been seen riding a car & a W. W. home shed near the icehouse even previous to the night he greeted the Fifty Cent Kid there but a few minutes before he admits he shot Palmero. They know that he ordered Palmero from his own house three days before he shot him and they also know that Palmero, the day before he died, pleaded with a car & a W. W. to avoid a death sentence for the killing of his children, because he knew Vincent, or Jim Cornevale, was but waiting for the chance to take his life.

Women in the Case. Mrs. Palmero and her mother, Mrs. Boschi, are free. They did not appear at the city hall this morning for the examination. Mrs. Boschi today is reported to have recovered from the illness she experienced yesterday morning at the county jail from which she was released through the efforts of Thos. S. Nolan.

LOYAL TO G. O. P. FOR SIXTY YEARS

William Hooper Votes His Fifteenth Republican Presidential Ticket—Devoted to Party.

True devotion to the republican party and a lasting belief in its principles was shown Tuesday when William Hooper, father of J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the School for the Blind, voted for his fifteenth president. He has been a republican since the party was formed in 1856 in Ripon, Wisconsin, and today is more firmly convinced of the wisdom and strength of its ideals than ever before.

There are few men, especially in this newer section of the country, who have boasted as long a period of active participation in the national elections as can Mr. Hooper, and it is a forcible evidence of lasting character of the party and of the unity of its purpose through all these years.

Mr. Hooper regards with great disfavor the terms, progressive, reactionary, and such phrases, and condemns them as merely the creations of politicians. He states that he was greatly increased at the breaking up of the G. O. P. four years ago, but rejoices in the coalition of the diverging elements into one party again, with but a single purpose and a single group of supporters.

Mr. Hooper is one of those zealous defenders of the party's principles who has stayed loyally in the support of its principles through the darkest and stormiest of its history. He has been a member of the party since its formation, and has never in the history of the party been more firm than now.

It is a pleasure to find these men of the old school, who have the experience of many campaigns behind them, and whose fidelity to the cause of the republican party grows more firm each year.

Digestibility of Eggs.

Medical science says that raw eggs are more quickly digested than cooked ones. Soft-boiled, roasted and poached eggs are more easily digested than when fried or hard-boiled. The stomach will digest a raw egg in from one and a half to two hours. Soft-boiled and roasted require from two and a half to three hours, while hard-boiled or fried must be allowed from three and a half to four hours for digestion.

FOIL PLOT TO LYNCH PALMERO'S SLAYER

go on ahead and it was not until he had minutely explained that the people would not permit them to lynch the prisoner and that all would be liable to prison like him, if they succeeded, that they were satisfied.

Torri's Work Pleases. All Janesville Italians apparently took up to Torri for his work in bringing Cornevale to justice. This he does not doubt, to their regard for Palmero, who was really a king to them in their colony here. Educated and versed in the ways of the American people, he was constantly helping them in their difficulties, championing their causes and careful and watchful that they were continuing on the right road to good fellowship.

Amongst them his position was enviable despite all that has been uncovered against him in his affairs of family since he was shot down in the yard of his home at 121 North street two weeks ago tomorrow night. They wanted to avenge his death because he had been their good friend.

Even Frank Golick, the man towards whom suspicion pointed strongest at first, was in the party last night. Golick is said to have been one of the four who originally conceived the idea.

Golick on two occasions was brought back from Chicago by Palmero after he had deserted his wife and children. The second time the little section law enforcement officer had called the man before Judge Maxfield in municipal court and advised that the best for commitment was to place him under the law so that he would have to work and support his family.

Palmero literally made the man live with his wife. After the sentence of six months in the county jail, he was released on bond. Palmero gave Golick a job in one of his section gangs. The police thought at one time that Golick entertained a hatred for Palmero, but he made him live with his wife and that for this reason he would be the man most likely to avenge his wounded feelings and set him free. This theory exploded after more than a week of investigation.

ENJOY FINE CONCERT AT THE APOLLO CLUB

The Apollo club held the second concert on their program for the winter season last evening and in spite of its being election night and rainy evening a large number of people were present. The program was given by the Zoellner string quartet of Brussels, Belgium. The Zoellners proved completely that chamber music is a widely known family quartet in the world. Quartette playing in families has many difficulties, but the Zoellners have brought chamber music close to the people by their ingratiating personality and their well chosen program. ## NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

"I wonder how many of my friends know that riding in the engine cab of a fast train is the hardest kind of hard work," asks Helen Holmes, who is seen in daring railway pictures. "There is little physical exertion about it, but the physical and mental strain is terrific. That is the chief reason why railroad companies seldom give their engineers long runs. One hundred and twenty-five miles is about the standard stretch. The photoplay knows, of course, that I am competent to drive a locomotive for the screen has shown me doing it—and how easy it looks. "But that's a deception. When I ride in the cab of a fast engine, say at the speed of sixty to ninety miles an hour, whether I am at the throttle or on the fireman's seat, the peculiar sensation I feel on a perfectly straight track is that the engine is standing on its rear wheels and climbing, as though the pilot—never, never say 'cowcatcher'—were pointed skyward. Then when we strike a curve, even a very slight one, the sensation is that the wheels which take the outside of the curve have left the rail and the locomotive is tottering over on its side. "The first time I experienced that sensation my heart for a couple of seconds stopped beating, and under the fear that swept me I smothered in my throat. That was one of the four times in my life when I was genuinely frightened."

FARRAR SHEARS LOCKS.
Geraldine Farrar is said to have bobbed her hair that she might look more like Joan in her forthcoming production of "Joan of Arc." Her pictures look like she did cut her hair and did not turn it under as did many conservative young women who wished to retain their hair while appearing to adopt the bob-cut popularized by Mrs. Castle.

SUN SEES SUN SET.
Helen Holmes, the intrepid jumper of the movies, dismissed her Chinese copy, Sun See. He was ambitious to become an artist, and when he should have been cooking he spent much time making sketches. "That wasn't the worst of his portrait sketches," said the indignant Holmes. "He showed me some of his portrait sketches and said they looked like me," said the indignant Holmes.

THE CASE OF BECKY.
Eyes of black, of brown, of blue.
Oh, I've suffered long for you!
Eyes of blue, of brown, of black.
Eyes—with hooks all down the back.

"Jump, Jennings! Jump!"
Mile. Becky, the world's most fearless animal trainer, cracked her whip, and the huge lion, snarling wickedly, obediently leaped through the napkin ring she held out for him.
The applause was tremendous.
Again Mile. Becky spoke sharply. "Josephus! On your tail!"
The great tiger bared his teeth and struck at her with his gigantic paw. She cracked her whip. Still the ferocious beast spat and clawed. The tiger leaped from his perch and stood erect on his handsome tail.
The applause was deafening.
At that moment a mouse scampered into the cage. With a shrill French shriek, Mile. Becky flung open the iron door and leaped out, leaving the door swinging open behind her as she fled. Luckily, attendants cap-

Douglas Fairbanks, star of stage and movies, has shown his talents as an amateur boxer in several recent film plays. On a recent trip west he stopped at his home in Denver. A delegation of admiring small boys of his neighborhood approached him. "We bet you could," they told Fairbanks. "Could what?" "Lick William Farnum." Vivian Rich has contracted to play with William Farnum.

Andrew Jackson's Birthplace.
North and South Carolinians quarrel as to the birthplace of Andrew Jackson. A tradition has it that he was born at the Waxhaw settlement in Union county, North Carolina, but Jackson himself thought that he was born near the Waxhaw creek in Lancaster county, South Carolina. The weight of evidence seems to favor the South Carolinians.

Chinese First to Use Paper.
China is credited with having nurtured the genius who first conceived the idea of writing material made from fibrous pulp, and some investigations profess to have found evidence that paper existed in the Celestial Kingdom at least two centuries before the Christian era.

"A PAIR OF QUEENS" WAS GOOD COMEDY

Farce-Comedy Presented at Myers Theatre Last Evening Enjoyed By Those Who Saw It.

The story of "A Pair of Queens" has to do with Peter Canby and his unmarried brother-in-law, both respectable business men, who visit an all-night restaurant in New York to get a bite to eat on their way to Canby's home after a late business conference. At an adjoining table sit two pretty women and their escorts. Canby and his brother-in-law have a couple of drinks and become acquainted with the four at the adjoining table. They are having a lively time when a row starts and the two respectable business men make a hurried departure, carrying with them a stranger's coat. Canby and his brother-in-law go home, sleep the sleep of the innocent, get up the next morning finding they have got themselves into a mess.

First they find the stranger's overcoat for which their morning paper tells them the police are searching. Then they discover that in the restaurant row a man was shot and that $10,000—which afterwards turned out to be forged—disappeared with the missing overcoat. This chain of circumstances lets loose a flood of laughable situations which keeps the audience in a constant roar of joyous merriment until the final curtain descends. The company appearing in the show were not the original company by any means, but they got over a number of laughs and gave a show which was well worth the money.

Tunesmiths.
A musician who desires to compose a tune that shall become popular must contrive to produce something apparently original, and yet not so original as to demand study; it must also contain echoes of other tunes previously popular, and yet they must be so indefinite that no one can tell for certain where they come from, which is what we mean when we say it is a wise tune that knows its own father.

The scenes for this feature are laid around the Thousand Islands, where Director Henry Otto took his company of players to make the production. The story is one of romance and adventure, and there is an unusual twist to the finale that will startle while it will please the spectator. ## Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What would you think of a girl who lives at a distance, whom you have been to see, and whom you think dear, and have given presents to, and tell you that she let a fellow hug her when you have not had the same privilege yourself? She made light of it. She nags a person about his clothes. Shall I continue to write or give him up? I think I will give him up. I don't know what to do. JACK.

The girl showed very poor taste. You tell her that she let the other boy hug her, and if she told the truth she is not the girl for you. Probably she was only trying to make you jealous. Don't take the matter too seriously. At the same time don't let her treat you slightly. She ought not to nag you about your clothes. Suggestions can be given in a nice way so that they will not hurt and antagonize.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have had my fever for over a year and I sneeze and cough more every day. I do not feel better. If you know of anything that will cure me, please print it in your column. Please tell me the only cure is a change of climate. J. B. O.

My fever is an autumnal fever. I have been to several doctors, but do not get better. If you know of anything that will cure me, please print it in your column. Please tell me the only cure is a change of climate. J. B. O.

Household Hints

HOME GREENERY.

To Start Bulbs for Winter Flowers—Take a large wooden bucket, put several inches of dirt in the bottom, then set your pots, with the bulbs in, on the dirt. Then put enough dirt over the bucket to cover all at least four inches deep. In about six weeks examine them and if they are one and one-half inches high take them out, but do not set in the sun for several days. You will have nice flowers if you do not take them out of the bucket too soon. This has been tried for years and is all right.

A Fern Dish for the Table, Without the Ferns—Take a glass dish, or any kind you prefer (not too large and not less than two inches deep). Put some good soil in it, then put grapefruit seeds in and cover with more soil. Keep damp and it will not take a great while until you will have something to admire. It will stay green all winter.

Mock Chicken—Take five nice lean pork chops, remove all fat, boil in just enough water to cook them, as there must be no water on them when done. Add butter size of walnut, three cups milk, one well-beaten egg, four enough to make consistency of chicken gravy. Salt and pepper to taste. Delicious and less expensive than chicken.

Carrot Salad—Two cups finely ground carrots, one-half cup ground English walnuts. Serve on lettuce leaf with a good salad dressing. This also makes a splendid sandwich filling.

Salad Dressing Without Eggs—One tablespoon butter into which mix one tablespoon flour till smooth; add to this one cup milk (or make it half evaporated milk). If you like, add one tablespoon mustard moistened with a little vinegar, four tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon salt, half cup vinegar, little pepper. Beat well. Cook twenty minutes—no longer. Take up and serve at once.

If you like, add one tablespoon mustard moistened with a little vinegar, four tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon salt, half cup vinegar, little pepper. Beat well. Cook twenty minutes—no longer. Take up and serve at once.

Carrot Salad—Two cups finely ground carrots, one-half cup ground English walnuts. Serve on lettuce leaf with a good salad dressing. This also makes a splendid sandwich filling.

WOMEN WHOSE FIANCES ARE KILLED IN WAR NOW ADRESSED AS FRAU.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Karlsruhe, Baden, Nov. 8.—The authorities of the grand duchy of Baden have found a welcome solution to the problem that has long bothered them of how to address women whose fiancés have been killed in the war and who regard themselves as wedded even though no ceremony ever took place. By order of the grand duke to the ministry of justice such women are entitled to call themselves and to be called "Frau" instead of "Fraulein" if they can establish satisfactorily that they were engaged, with earnest intention of being married, to men who have been killed in the war or who are reported as missing for a specified length of time.

Unwritten Poetry.

Many people suppose that poetry is something to be found only in books, contained in lines of ten syllables with like endings; but wherever there is a sense of beauty, or power, or harmony, as in the motion of a wave of the sea, in the growth of a flower that "spreads its sweet leaves to the air, and dedicates its beauty to the sun"—there is poetry in its birth.—Hazlitt.

If Ivory Soap were no purer, milder, or higher grade than ordinary soaps it still would be far more pleasant to use because of its lather.

The Ivory lather is formed quickly. It is thick and copious so that the entire body can be covered easily. It holds together and lasts so that the skin can be massaged thoroughly without having the soap become dry and stiff. And it is rinsed away as quickly as it is made because it contains no unsaponified oil to make it stick to the skin.

If you have been using soap that gives a thin, inadequate lather, the Ivory lather will be a revelation.

"My dear, do not be tiresome. Are you so old-fashioned that you think it a tragic affair to quarrel with your husband? A little thunder storm only relieves the oppressive atmosphere. Come on or well be late. I can alay your tears on the way." She gave her aunt a peck of a kiss. (To be continued.)

GERMAN SCIENTISTS DISCOVER A NEW INK; A BOON TO PARENTS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Nov. 8.—"War ink" is the latest invention to supply an existing need. The minister of education announces the invention of a fluid highly adaptable to school work, which does not penetrate loosely woven paper nor blot as ordinary ink does, and which within a short time will be ready for introduction into all public schools. The chief advantage of the new ink is that it enables pupils to use cheaper paper for the exercise, and makes them independent.

Hardy glanced at the large double cabin a hundred yards off to the right of the road. The broad front porch gave it a homelike appearance. The two cabins before him were very small. Beyond them stood the big agency warehouse. Its overhanging upper story showed that it had been built for use as a blockhouse, but the many windows had rendered it less defensible than one of the cabins. The only persons in sight were the two Indian police who had been left in charge by Redbear.

"Well?" repeated Vandervyn.
"Not an easy place to defend," said Hardy. "Where is the office and the guardhouse?"
"The office is in the near front corner of the warehouse. The police quarters are in the other end. You see the white ropes over there across the creek? Most of the relations of the police camp near the agency. This first cabin is Nogen's—yours, I should say. The second is mine."
"Your quarters? May I ask you for a bite of lunch as soon as I have rubbed down my mare?"
"I board with the Duponts, but I can scare up a cold lunch," said Vandervyn.
As they dismounted, Redbear came up and successfully carried favor with the new agent by offering to curry his mare. He led her away to the low brush stable beyond the warehouse.

After lunch, though still weary from his long ride, Hardy put in the rest of the day inspecting the agency property and examining the accounts of the two clerks. With the exception of two or three small items on Redbear's books, everything checked accurately.

Vandervyn brought bacon, coffee, crackers and canned food, and the new agent cooked supper with the skill of an old campaigner. After they had eaten, the chief clerk produced cigars in anticipation of a social evening. But Hardy was so drowsy that he asked to be excused. The moment he was alone, he laid his rifle and automatic pistol in the bunk, blew out the candle, and tumbled in on his blankets, without troubling to close either the door or the one small window.

The next morning Hardy and Vandervyn were seated in the agency office when Redbear came in and started to shuffle around to his desk, on the other side of the office partition.
"Wait!" said Hardy. "I wish the chiefs and headmen of the tribe summoned to meet me in council as soon as possible."
"It is a day's ride to the camps farthest back in the mountains," remarked Vandervyn.
Hardy considered, and looked up at Redbear.
"Does not this tribe use smoke signals?"
"Not for a long time, not since I was a boy, sir. I never learned how to do it."
"That old sergeant of police will know," predicted Hardy. "Come!"
Vandervyn lingered behind the others, and followed them only to the rear corner of the warehouse. When he had seen them ride off across Sioux creek towards the highest of the mountains that encircled the valley, he went back into the office, opened the safe, and carefully sorted over its contents. All letters addressed to the late agent and to himself he took out and looked in his desk.

Meantime Hardy and Redbear with the police sergeant passed through the camp of the families of the police, where they added two old bucks to their party. A pony trail led up through the pines on the mountainside to the bare granite crag of the summit. Mid-afternoon found the Indians standing around a greenwood fire, alternately covering it with a blanket and permitting puffs of the dense smoke to rise in the still air.
In less than half an hour Hardy's glasses showed him an answering smoke on a peak fifteen or twenty miles distant. When he called attention to it, the police sergeant pointed out still another smoke signal off to the left of the first and several miles farther away. The old bucks turned from the fire and started down to where the mare and ponies had been left.

"The chiefs will come tomorrow," Redbear interpreted their answer to Hardy's inquiry.
The jaded buckboard ponies were tugging their load up the slope of the terrace when Hardy came down the line of agency buildings at a gallop. Marie Dupont was driving; but on the seat beside her was a brown-eyed, olive-skinned girl, who averted her handsome face with childish shyness as Hardy wheeled his mare and reined up alongside.

Marie flushed under the officer's direct gaze, though, unlike her companion, she did not seek to avoid it. He raised his hat with punctilious politeness. She bowed, and, glancing back at him with a level glance, quietly remarked: "Good afternoon, Captain Hardy. I have brought your luggage."

"That was very kind of you," said Hardy as he glanced at the other girl. Marie smiled in instant appreciation of the fact that he had spoken to her as to an equal. She patted her companion's work-reddened hand with her gloved fingers. "This is Charlie Redbear's sister Olna. They did not treat her well at school, so she ran away to come home. I want her to live with me; but she says she must be with her brother. You will not send her back?"
The young girl looked at the new agent with a smile of timid appeal, and wept because Marie said she was not yet finished with his first drink. But Dupont had already begun to mellow.

"Here's to your boiled shirt, Cap," he toasted.
"Stand-up collar and a white shirt. It's sure a high-toned celebration. Better wear 'em careful. You'll have to mail 'em a hundred miles to the nearest Chinaman when they get dirty."
"Cheaper to throw them away, and send a mail order to Chicago for new ones," put in Vandervyn. He added, as

Hardy picked the stiffest chair in the room, sat down—and promptly rose to a position of polite attention. A young lady had appeared in the doorway at the side of the room—a young lady in a semidolce gown, of lines irreproachable, the creamy whiteness of her full, round throat displayed. Her mass of coal-black hair was dressed in the very latest mode. Her cheeks were as highly colored as if rouged.

Vandervyn gazed at her with the brand of admiration that passes over the footlights from the first-row seats to the prettiest girl in the chorus. Hardy bowed as he would have saluted his colonel's lady or the daughter of a Moro chief, if either had been his hostess.

The girl's eyes sparkled as she noted his change of dress, his immaculate linen, and clean-shaven chin. His bow won a smile that may have been due either to gratified vanity or to a commendable self-respect. She greeted him in a tone that caused Vandervyn to straighten in his chair. "It is a great pleasure to have you dine with us."

"The pleasure is mine, Miss Dupont," declared Hardy.
"You've hit it, Cap," put in Dupont. "You can just bet your bottom dollar on it you won't kick yourself for coming when you get to her feed-trough."

The girl's sable-black eyes dilated and her perfectly molded chin rose a fraction of an inch. She placed the tray on a tea table, bowed composedly, and left the room. Vandervyn looked at Hardy with an ironical smile. The silent mockery was wasted. Hardy was watching Dupont uncork the whisky bottle.
"One moment, Mr. Dupont," he said. "As you are my host, the question is not an awkward one to ask—yet is there not a law or a rule of the Indian bureau against bringing liquor upon a reservation?"
Dupont stared around at the inquirer in blank surprise. Before he could find words to answer, Vandervyn replied for him: "According to the strict letter of the law, captain, you are right. You can't fancy that Jake would be fool enough to sell liquor to the Indians?"
"By Gar, you bet I don't—not when it's ten-year-old rye," qualified Dupont. "You can't get no better stuff out of Canada. Marie made me buy some wine, too, to celebrate your coming. She said it was up to us to loosen up, seeing as you had shooed off them bucks."

"Ah, since you put it that way," Hardy accepted the explanation. "I must ask you, however, not to bring anything more of the kind across the river."

"Of course he will not, if you object," assured Vandervyn. "Nogen didn't read the law as you do; but if you believe in dry weather for ourselves as well as for the Indians, you're the boss."

"Sure, and here's one all round to show there ain't no hard feeling," said Dupont.
He poured out three drinks, each measured to the brim of a whisky glass. His own and Vandervyn's disappeared at a gulp. Hardy took a sip and asked for a seltzer. The bottle was handed around another time and

A MEDICAL TREATISE

By J. B. C. YOUNG.

The little nurse was coming down the hallway with a tray for her patient in room 13. It was about four o'clock, and, of course, Mac Thompson was standing somewhere near, with his hands in his pockets and his hat on the back of his head, waiting for her. Beside him stood Bill Fields, who immediately brought his heels together and bowed profoundly when he saw her coming.

"Hello, Miss Arthur," said Mac, with a most irritating smile.

"How do you do?" said the little nurse primly, and marched on with her tray.

"Allow me," said Mac, as he pushed open the door.

"Thank you, Mr. Thompson." And she whisked past him into the room. Bill disappeared down the hall, and Mac sauntered up and down and waited for his tormentor to reappear.

Out she whisked and was proceeding to pass him with another sweet and preoccupied smile when he caught her apron.

"Let me go this instant, Mac. Let go my apron. I just wish you medical students wouldn't come bothering me when I'm busy."

"Hey? Plural? Which ones have been bothering you? Give me their names. I'll see to them directly. I'm the only medical student licensed to bother you." Mac took out his notebook and pen with a flourish and looked at her in a business-like way.

She had to laugh. "Mac, you ridiculous thing, you'll never be sensible. But, seriously now, you are interrupting me in my work. I wish you would go away." She screwed her face up into a frown.

"I've got my orders. Farewell, cruel young woman." And then he turned right about and walked stiffly down the hall.

"What a boy!" she said scornfully, with a smile at the corner of her mouth.

How she longed to shake him, as she watched him cross the street from hospital that night. Strange how she watched for him every night.

"Hello, hussy!" he said next night, when she came out of room 16 with her arms full.

She had just been thinking of him, and she looked up with a smile that was too brilliant to be anything but genuine. Mac's face lost its bantering look and he stooped and kissed the upturned face.

"You darling!" he said huskily.

But the little nurse was perturbed with horror. Had he thought she was glad to see him? Did he dare to think she had wanted to see him?

"Oh, how dare you? I—I—" Her thoughts trailed off into nothingness, and she made her escape into her room and had a good weep for very rage. "How dare he? Horrid thing! He took advantage! I'll never, never, never—" But she did not say what she would never do.

"Miss Arthur," Mac was standing before her in a room next evening, came out of a room next evening. There was grim determination in his face, and the little nurse was panicky. Oh, for anything to stare this reckoning off!

"Oh no! Oh, no, no!" she stammered, and would have fled. He turned quickly, and caught his finger in the door-jamb.

"Jove!" he muttered forcefully, as he rescued his hand and examined it.

"Oh, Mac, I've hurt you! How did I do it? Do let me see it, please do!"

Now, Mac, naturally, a wily young man, saw his advantage at once, and drew his face up into a still more exasperating scowl.

"Jove!" he said again, pretending that the pain made him oblivious of her presence.

"Dear Mac, do let me see it. I'll bandage it. I'm so sorry, Mac, dear." The little nurse was so truly distressed that she did not care what she said.

"Not out here, come on into this empty room. Jove, but it pains! Are you very sorry?"

"Oh, yes, so sorry!"

"Shame!" thought Mac to himself, "but it's got to be done!" He raised a pained face to her sorrow-stricken one. "Would you be sorry if my hand had to be amputated?"

"Oh, Mac!" And she buried her head on his arm in tears.

"Would you marry a man with only one hand?"

The little nurse nodded her head, choking with sobs, and Mac cheerfully grinned over her head and winked his eye at the window.

"Oh, but you would rather have a good article than a damaged one."

"I love you anyway, Mac."

"Then it's all right, girlie, for I didn't hurt my hand at all," said Mac cheerfully, printing another kiss on the astonished face of the little nurse. She was so relieved that she kissed him in return.

"Mac, where are you?" came Bill's voice from the hall outside.

"Here."

"Coming to class meeting?" said Bill, putting his head inside the door. "What the deuce are you doing inside here? Eh? Well, I'll be— Congratulations!" Bill vanished discreetly.

A few minutes later Mac came out of the hospital with a jaunty step. He waved his hand at the little nurse, who openly stood at the window and smiled.

The Haglographa.

Where is it?
"Isn't it strange how quickly these war maps get out of date?" "Really, Mrs. Brunk, I had not thought about it. Do they?" "Yes, indeed, I bought a new one only last week, and today I looked for an hour for Armageddon, but I couldn't find it anywhere."—Christian Herald.

Evidence of Eyewitness.

A small boy recently attended the theater. In the play a false servant stole a valuable ring. The master in anger called the servants before him and attempted to gain a confession. "Who stole the ring?" he thundered. Then and there the little fellow, who had been deeply engrossed, called out: "The man with the red stockings."

Denny Sullivan, who bore the title of manager of the St. Joseph club of the Western league the past season, says he is done with baseball and hereafter will devote his time to practicing medicine. Otto Williams is said to be a receptive candidate for the job of relieving Jack Holland's orders to St. Joe players.

GRANEY SAYS HE'LL BE A REGULAR DOC

Jack Graney and Larry.

Jack Graney, the Cleveland Indian outfielder, is going to high school all through the winter, determined to complete his education and to be a doctor. He can't play ball for a while, he considers. Jack's cup Larry is the Indian mascot and the pet of all American league players.

MORRIS MILLER

Nailing the story that has been going the rounds that Joe Tinker would have to take a deep cut in salary if he kept his job as manager of the Chicago Cubs, President of the Weeghman says if the manager of his team is not good enough to earn the salary, he is not good enough to have around. Which doesn't exactly answer the question of whether Tinker will be retained or not. Tinker is said to have drawn $12,000 a year from the Weeghman treasury.

"Watch Sam Rice hit that pill next year. That young man stands a chance of leading the league with the stick, and no one knows it better than T. Cobb, who praised Rice's ability," said Manager Griffith the other day. "Sam Rice will prove one of our most valuable men. He has spread enough to make himself one of the most competent of sprinters and, with a little more experience will gain a lot of stolen bases." Rice is wintering in Chicago, where the cold weather will keep him in fine fettle and with a warm place to train in the spring he ought to be in his best form when next season opens.

Doc Johnson, former Pittsburgh first baseman, recently released to Birmingham, has returned to his home in Chattanooga, detailing a grievance. He says the Brooklyn club wanted to buy him before it got Fred Merkle, but that Pittsburgh wouldn't let him go, thus leading him out of a share in the world's series money, and then shipped him to the minors. Johnson admits that Pittsburgh couldn't very well spare him at the time, but at that thinks he got a bad deal.

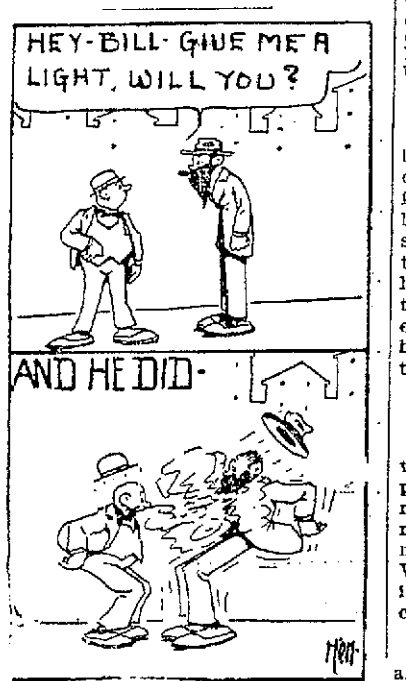

Announcement comes from New York State league circles that Dr. Take, who owns the Reading (Corney Albany) franchise, the league has about decided to retain George Wilkes as his manager for next year. The club owner has made the positive announcement that he has paid claims against Reading territory and means to continue to operate in Reading, where the patronage was fairly satisfactory after the shift from Albany last summer.

Harold Cable, infielder, who was sent to the Newark Internationals last spring and recalled in the call, has been sold by the New York club to the Athletics. Cable played 127 games with Newark, hit .267 and stole 25 bases, besides putting up a nifty game at second base. Connie Mack looked him over several times and was much taken by his style.

The Chicago city series was started in 1903. The two Windy City teams did not meet in 1907, 1908 and 1910 because in those years the Cubs were the world's series while the 1908 series between them was a world's series as well. In all the two Chicago teams have met in 65 games. Of these the White Sox have won 37 and the Cubs 28. The 1903 series was a draw, the Cubs won in 1905, 1909 and 1912 and in the other years, including 1906, the White Sox were victors.

A ball player's penchant for lying about his age is proverbial, but the testimony of the wife of Ed Holly in her suit for divorce offers a new angle. She says in her suit that Holly told her a ball player had to have a young wife, so he deserted and picked up with a girl of more tender years, took her south with him and passed her off as his wife, apparently with the idea that her youth would give the impression that he also was a youngster. And he seems to have fooled them in Mobile at that.

Too much reading and too many movie shows are blamed for the condition of Vic Soler's eyes, which are said to be so bad he may have to wear glasses. One who has ordered the Cub's first sacker to give his eyes a complete rest throughout the winter.

DELMONT IS COMER AMONG FEATHERS

Gene Delmont.

Gene Delmont, the Memphis featherweight, has been making friends in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, where he has won several fight fights from some of the cleverest boys in the class. Delmont has worked hard to pile up a good record and he means to improve it with a victory over Johnny Dundee when he meets him soon.

Peculiar Russian Dish.
One of the national dishes of Russia is known as the Pashka. It is a sort of cake that stands one and a half feet high, and is always put on a tall base. It is usually surmounted by a sugar cross, and is placed in the center of the table when the Russians hold their great feast of Easter when the fast is broken. It takes about 60 eggs to make the Pashka, but none but natives can succeed in producing the rare taste.

Much Need for It.
The people of India reverence the tree called "Pious Religiosa," or the Peepul tree, because they say you can never tell a lie beneath it. For this reason they always put it in places remote from where they sell anything. What a splendid thing it would be if it could be planted throughout our cities.—Selected.

MILKING COWS ON SUNDAY STARTS AWFUL ROW MONDAY

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 8.—Ever since Monday there has been a terrible, awful row at Minnesota university's agricultural school over milking Prof. T. L. Haeckler's ten thoroughbred Jersey cows on Sunday.

Deaf farmers returning to the land via the sheepskin barked on doing it. One of them said he came to the college to learn to be a better Christian. But the cows must be milked and the authorities have been asked to decide the wrangle once and for all by making a flat rule covering the point.

WORK GOES FORWARD ON RECONSTRUCTION OF MEXICAN COUNTRY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New London, Conn., Nov. 8.—One of the benefits so far attained by the Mexican-American international peace commission has been the reconstruction work accomplished by the constitutional government. While the chief aim of the commission is the assistance of the United States troops from Mexico, the delegates from beyond the Rio Grande have not hesitated to take the American flag as a symbol of the rehabilitation undertaken by the revolutionists and that already accomplished by them. Until recently Mexico has been thought of in terms of anarchy, hardly any one dreamed that constructive work was in progress among her people. Yet that is the story of Senor Ignacio Bonillas, the story of Senor Bonillas is the story of the three Mexican commissioners sent here by General Venustiano Carranza. He is an engineer, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and has spent many years in the United States. To Senor Bonillas General Carranza trusted the task of bringing order out of five years of chaos. He was his own chief of railroads and telegraph lines and harbors in operation while Mexico was torn with strife. He holds the portfolio of minister of communication and public works in the Carranza cabinet. Under his supervision are the railroads, postoffices, telegraph lines, port, harbor and river improvements, and all other work of a public nature.

Telegraphic Communication Restored. "At the present time," said Senor Bonillas, "there is a complete system of telegraphic communication with all parts of the republic, even its most remote parts, and this has been the case for many months. The last state to be added to the long list is Morelos, where Zapata had been in control for some time. It was recently driven out by General Pablo Gonzales. The overwhelming importance of such a system was demonstrated during the last revolution. A public communication defined the bandits, and in a large measure our success was due to our ability to keep in touch with centers of supplies and the outer world. "The two largest stations in our service are located at Saltillo, the capital of the state of Coahuila, and at Chihuahua, a suburb of Mexico City. They are both of the highest power and are operated by experienced men. The other stations are only of two and a half kilowatt power, but are supplied with the same equipment. At present Mexico's wireless system is more than twice as large as it was before the revolution."

The land service, however, has not been neglected. Senor Bonillas said. In fact, he has extended it to remote parts which had never before known regular service. All this has been accomplished under great difficulties. "The postal service," said Senor Bonillas, "was far from efficient when the constitutionalists took charge of the country. Years of revolution had disrupted the service. Besides, the railroad situation was an obstacle to progress and development. No postal service was possible until the warfare of the country. We could not get along without it. Together with Senor Alberto Paul, president of the National railway lines of Mexico, I set out to establish order and organize an efficient postal system. Under the present regime the delivery of mails has been carefully regulated. Old and disadvantageous contracts have been abrogated, and more beneficial ones entered into. Many new routes have been established and offices opened in places which in the past had never enjoyed postal facilities. The mails are delivered with much greater frequency, and this regardless of the fact that the force has been materially decreased while the expenses have been lessened."

OPEN NEW FIELDS FOR WOMEN STUDENTS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—For women students seeking positions other than teaching, special vocational conferences will be held on March 21 and 22 in addition to the regular annual vocational conferences which are held every year.

Miss Helen M. Bennett, who has been manager of the Chicago Collegiate Bureau of Occupations since it was organized, will act as adviser at the conferences. She will not only help the women students in deciding what they want to do, but will aid in placing them in positions through the bureau of which she is manager.

At the regular vocational conferences in February a number of speakers from various professions will address all university women both public and private in conferences endeavoring to help them decide what to prepare for. Miss Bennett, however, will give special attention to seniors who are seeking positions after they graduate.

Miss Bennett has been instrumental in placing a number of Wisconsin students who were anxious to do other work than teaching. During her three days at the university she will be occupied with short private conferences, and will keep a careful record of the applicants for positions.

A large number of university women have gone into the teaching profession because they knew of no other opportunity for them. Miss Bennett places no teachers at all, but limits her work to those professions not so commonly taken up by women.

SOUTH AMERICAN NURSES WITH 4,642 PATIENTS STRIKE: ARE BEATEN

Buenos Aires, Nov. 8.—The city authorities today believe they have beaten the strike of nurses in the Buenos Aires municipal hospitals. The walkout resulted from the attempt to substitute women for men nurses. It was contended that the women were better than the latter who were gradually being replaced as women were graduated from the local school for nurses. In an effort to compel abandonment of this system, the men nurses struck, leaving 4,642 patients temporarily uncared for.

Sisters of Charity, medical students and other volunteers rallied to the aid of the women nurses already in the service, and now the city officials say the change from men to women nurses has been made for good, though they were forced to affect it sooner than they had originally intended.

GERMANY A REPUBLIC WHEN SHE IS DRIVEN BACK TO THE RHINE

French Trooper, Well Versed in French "Culture," Forms Strong Opinion.

By George Martin.
New York, Nov. 8.—A poll on the French front not long ago told President Poincaré that when the Allies have pushed the Germans back to the Rhine they will give the German people a republic.

In the east today is a very busy, very earnest, very intense Frenchman with a closely cropped Van Dyke beard who is preparing to travel all over the United States and explain that remark.

M. Jules Bois, the man, is a special envoy of the French government to the United States. His task is to explain the difference, as he sees it, between the French and German cultures. He said today that the poll's remark was the result of his mental schooling in French culture—a "feminine culture based on love, not a masculine culture based on conquest."

"The teaching of French culture is as important a part of the training of fighting men in the armories of France," said M. Bois, "as is the military drill. I do not know that this is true in your United States, but it will be."

"The poll's remark epitomized the spirit of French culture. Along with his bayonet and gun he got the idea that he could use neither in attack, but only in honor and defense."

"French culture is a culture for the women, the children and the weak as much as it is for the strong man."

"Every Frenchman who falls upon the battlefields of Europe does so that the ideal of individuality in nations may endure."

Between now and Jan. 1, M. Bois will deliver addresses at all the large universities in the east. After the first of the year a tour of the west, beginning at New Orleans, will be made by him.

BUENOS AIRES MAY QUIT COMMISSION GOVERNMENT SOON

People Tired of Rule by Outsiders. New Plan Provides for City Council.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Nov. 8.—A proposition is before the Argentine congress to change the Buenos Aires form of government.

Hitherto the city has had a commission government like Washington. The people are tired, however, of having their affairs regulated for them by outsiders. They point out that this management has resulted in the piling up of one of the largest municipal debts, considering that it is also remarked that the attempt to economize by the unauthorized withholding of pay from the city employees is resulting in a very serious series of strikes by the scavengers, grave diggers and other classes of city workers.

The situation is also more irritating from a national standpoint than the one in Washington, where a national population of about 100,000,000 dictates arbitrarily to a city of about 350,000. While in China, a total population of approximately 7,000,000 makes local regulations for a capital with a population exceeding 1,500,000.

The new plan, if adopted, will abolish the municipal council, to be elected by the citizens. A unique feature of the proposal is that it confers the municipal franchise upon foreigners more than 18 years old who have lived in Buenos Aires more than two years if they are married to Argentine women, are parents of Argentine children or pay taxes to a specified amount. The plan even makes them eligible to councilorships above the age of 35.

Furthermore, following the example of the national election law, the idea is made the exercise of the franchise obligatory. There is considerable criticism of this change, disregard of the national law, which provides a penalty of ten pesos or a term of imprisonment upon eligibles who neglect to cast their ballots, having proved so general that the officials do not have held the offenders if they had been prosecuted.

U. S.-ALASKA ROAD STARTS OPERATION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Nov. 8.—One hundred thirty-six miles of the new Seward to Fairbanks railroad to connect Seward with Fairbanks—a distance of 468 miles—is now in operation with daily trains running. On the 136 miles, 71 comprise the old Alaska coast railway line, which has been repaired and again put in operation. Sixty-five miles is entirely new.

The Old Alaska-Northern line ran from Seward to Kern Creek, and was built in 1904—falling into practical disuse during 1908. The new section connects the town to Matanuska Junction, where a branch line twenty-nine miles long has been run to the Matanuska coal fields. Coal is now being mined from these fields, not expected to be cut clear through until the fall of 1919—will be the connecting section between Kern Creek and Fairbanks, which is hoped by the Government engineers, will be completed next year.

Work is also progressing in the vicinity of Fairbanks where new work is being done to connect up the town with the adjacent Menana coal fields—Fairbanks now facing a fuel shortage.

The estimated cost of the construction of the 468 miles of the main line (including the branch to the Matanuska coal fields) is $25,642,000. Of this sum $11,000,000 will have been expended up to the close of the present fiscal year. A force of 4000 men is employed on the road, and is considered adequate to complete the line. Work will progress throughout the winter.

U. S. PLANS TO EXTEND WEATHER BUREAU SERVICE IN CARIBBEAN AND GULF

Washington, Nov. 8.—Extension of the United States weather bureau service in the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico, where the present stations have been found invaluable in obtaining information of hurricanes and storms approaching the American coast, is being arranged. New stations will be established at Bonaire, British Honduras, Bluefields, Nicaragua; Swan Island in the Caribbean, north of Honduras; Santa Marta, Colombia; St. Lucia Island; Puerto Plata, San Domingo, Republic of Haiti; Guantamomo, Cuba, and on one of the Danish West Indies. Stations now are maintained at Barbados, Trinidad, Curacao, Bermuda, and Bahamas, where the work of the observers will be extended and improved. Daily reports will be made to the weather bureau here and from some points two reports a day may be sent. In this way officials here will be kept in close touch with all weather conditions and be able to detect approaching storms.

TUNNY FISH FURNISHES GERMANY SUBSTITUTE FOR GENUINE MEAT

Berlin, Nov. 8.—All Berlin these days is living "in the sign of the tunny fish"—the best substitute for genuine meat that has been discovered since there began to be restriction of the regular meat supply. On "meatless" as well as other days tunny now comes a respectable place on the bill of fare of every big Berlin restaurant, and great quantities of it are being eaten.

One large and very well patronized cafe, for instance, "Hofe," on Tuesday and Friday, under the heading of "Meat Dishes," the following four items: "Fricassee of tunny with rice, Tunny Schnitzel with peas, carrots and fried potatoes, German hash of tunny fish with sprouts and fried potatoes, Tunny goulash."

The meat of the tunny is coarse and somewhat strong, or gummy, and too much of it is eaten. But it is nevertheless an excellent substitute for meat, and likewise a relief from the finer fish that grows very scarce if eaten week in and week out. The supply of tunny is said to come principally from the Adriatic.

Poor Diplomat.

FIFTY MEET DEATH WHEN CAR PLUNGES THROUGH A BRIDGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Boston, Mass., Nov. 7.—Fifty-four persons were drowned Tuesday night when a crowded passenger car of the Boston Elevated Street railway plunged through an open drawbridge into Fort Point channel just outside the South Station terminal.

Twelve other persons were rescued from the water by fire boats and tugs. One man, Thomas J. Gannon, died after being brought to shore. The police arrested the motorman, who gave his name as Gerard Walsh. The conductor, George McKee, also was saved from drowning. According to the police, the motorman asserts that the light on the draw was extinguished and therefore he did not see the gap before him. Other witnesses say, however, that the red lantern on the gate was burning.

Western Electric Employees.
The car was bound from South Boston to Boston. Sixty-six persons were aboard. Most of the passengers were employees of the Western Electric company's factory in South Boston and were returning to their homes from work. Many women and children were included in the number.

The draw ladder said that he received a signal about 5:25 p. m. from the towboat, William G. Williams, which was going upstream with a lighter in tow.

"I was in the controlling house," he said, "and I took all the usual precautions. There were red lights on the gate. I opened the draw and the tugboat started to come through. Suddenly my attention was attracted by a crash and screams. As I looked around the car went right through the gate of the draw and plunged into the channel. Only the rear trucks remained on the rail, the body of the car breaking away from these trucks and disappearing under the water."

Few Bodies Recovered.
Fire apparatus summoned to the scene lined up on both sides of the draw, and the spot where the disaster occurred was illuminated by search lights from the tug William G. Williams and a fire boat. They immediately began a search for the bodies, but at a late hour had recovered only twelve, as most of them were pined in the car, thirty-five feet below the surface of the water. Preparations were hastily made for bringing lighters to the scene and raising the car.

Mayor Curley, on hearing the news, raced to the bridge and assembled there were Street Commissioner Brennan, the Rev. Walter Lambert, the Rev. George V. Lyons, Dr. Herbert Keenan, and several physicians.

Many Remarkable Escapes.
There were many remarkable escapes. William Good broke through a window and succeeded in raising himself to the surface. His head was terribly bruised and he was suffering from internal injuries. Firemen aided him to reach the bridge on a ladder which was lowered over the side.

der which was lowered over the side. He was removed to the city hospital, where his name was put on the dangerously injured list. Arthur Smith and John McDonald, who were near the front vestibule when the car went through the draw, broke through a window and were found swimming some distance from the car. They were picked up by firemen and collapsed as soon as they were brought on the bridge.

U. S. POPULATION INCREASES 24 MILLION IN FIFTEEN YEARS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Nov. 8.—The population of the United States has increased 24,000,000 people in the last fifteen years, and the number of beef animals has decreased 6,000,000, and sheep 10,000,000, while hogs have increased only 11,000,000.

DRIVE ENDANGERS GERMANY'S BASES FOR ALL AIRCRAFT

Long Distant and Weak Raids Past Now as Allies Encoach on Territory Held by Germans.

London, Nov. 8.—The great Anglo-French drive on the Somme, in northern France, today has direct bearing on future Zeppelin raids on England.

This hint was given today by a British official in a position to know. If the Anglo-French forces on the Somme drive a wider and deeper wedge into the German line, the entire line must eventually fall back to strengthen itself. This would mean that the Allied aerial bases in northern France would also move forward.

The natural sequence is that German military and aviation bases both in Belgium and across the Rhine, become from a strategic and military point of view, more legitimate objectives for Allied air squadrons. Hitherto, Allied air forces have been able to make long distance raids, but not heavy ones.

The great Zeppelin hangars in Belgium, including those now under construction and those in Germany from which the present raiding Zeppelins operate, would become practically useless to Germany.

According to expert opinion here it is not illogical to believe that such conditions would be a total loss unless the Germans move them to safer places. Safer places in this instance would mean far into the interior of Germany. Thus all present calculations concerning the Zeppelin radius of action, atmospheric conditions and other scientific problems of Zeppelin raids in England would have to be made over again. Even the radius of the great super-Zeppelins would be seriously cut down and a smaller type of airship probably would become wholly useless so far as raiding England is concerned.

A recent British communiqué detailing a raid by eighty aeroplanes carrying tons of high explosives, gives a further hint of the force which the allies can put into use against Zeppelin lairs within a safe radius of a readjusted western front.
